Council Clears Way for W. 4th Paving

AGREES TO PAY HALF COST OF IMPROVEMENT

Authorizes Nist to Negotiate With State on Proposed $100,000 Project.

WILL SEEK AID OF WPA

Federal Help to Be Sought in Construction of Additional Water Mains on Street.

City council today had cleared the way for the long sought West Fourth street improvement.

Meeting in special session last night, council agreed to share in the cost of the project on a 50-50 basis and authorized Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist to enter into negotiations with the state highway department for the improvement.

The project which has been estimated at approximately $100,000 calls for the reconstruction of the roadway from North Main street to Ausdale avenue at the west city limits.

The $100,000 figure represents only the combined total of the city and state's share on the improvement which has been estimated by state highway department engineers at $150,000. WPA would furnish the remaining $50,000 in labor.

Plan New Water Mains.

At the same time council also approved legislation that permits Nist to negotiate with the WPA for the construction of additional water mains and the laying of fire and police signal system conduit in connection with the project.

Legislation authorizing the incidental work provides for the construction of new mains ranging in size from eight to 12 inches to be laid in various sections of the street between North Main street and Linden road.

Schools To Blame For U. S. Jobless Babson Declares

BOSTON—(AP)—Asserting that gh school students "know more about cheers than chores," Roger Babson, university specialist, charged today that the school system in the United States was "primarily responsible for at least 7,000,000 of the 10,000,000 unemployed" in the nation.

Business men, he declared in a prepared address before the New England Association of School Superintendents, "are forced to cease to employ the young men and women emerging from a broken-down organization which has been despoiled by political raiders."

Babson listed 10 factors which he said contributed to unemployment, but added that "the big reason is that young people are being graduated from our schools today as goods are being sold by department stores. Politically-minded school committees are giving these children—not what untrained children need — but what misled parents think they want them to have.

NEW MYSTERY

O'Hare Murder Probers Find $22,000 Secret Deposit.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Discovery of $22,000 in cash in a safety deposit box rented by Edward J. O'Hare today thrust a new mystery into the hands of authorities investigating the shotgun slaying of the millionaire sports promoter nine days ago.

The money was contained in two envelopes marked with the name "Dolan." State's Attorney Thomas Courtney refused to state whether the find was considered related to his investigation of the O'Hare killing, but previously the state's attorney has indicated that he believed O'Hare's various financial dealings may hold the key to his assassination.

Courtney said he had no information as to the possible identity of "Dolan."

DEWEY CALLS BUND LEADER A 'NUISANCE'

District Attorney Testifies at Trial, Says Kuhn Possible Civil Liberties Threat.

DENIES HATRED CHARGE

Protests Defense Claim Trial Was Motivated by Politics and Ill Will.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mrs. Virginia Cogswell, 32, the 7-times-married "Georgia Peach" whose name has figured in the larceny trial of Fritz Kuhn, said in an interview today that the German-American bund leader had described himself to her as "public enemy No. 1."

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey testified as a defense witness at the grand larceny trial of Fritz Kuhn today that he considered the German-American bund leader "a nuisance to the community and probably a threat to civil liberties."

Dewey, prominently mentioned as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, was called to the stand by Peter L. F. Sabbatino, Kuhn's counsel, who indicated he hoped to prove that the prosecution of the bund leader had a political motivation.

Kuhn is accused of appropriating $1,891.75 of the bund's money to his own uses. Bund members have testified that under the "leadership principle" of the bund, Kuhn had "absolute power" to use its money as he saw fit.

Never Saw Him.

Sabbatino asked Dewey, who is responsible for bringing Kuhn to trial, if he had any personal animus" against the "bundesfuehrer."

"Never having seen the man before," Dewey replied, "it would be impossible for me to have personal animosity. And yet, on the other hand, I have considered him a nuisance to the community and probably a threat to civil liberties."

Sabbatino said he intended to show that a spirit of hatred had been created against the defendant.

"It is difficult to call it hatred," Dewey said, "when it is really contempt."

Sabbatino tried to bring out that bund records, used by the state in the prosecution, were "illegally seized." From those records the state arrived at its charge that Kuhn had spent bund money to Earlier, it had been announced that foreign airplanes flew over Basle twice yesterday. The first time, one unidentified plane appeared from the southwest and continued northeast. Later, a German plane was sighted over Basle flying southwest. It was about 10,000 feet high.

Waits Until January To Name New Justice

Roosevelt Indicates Butler's Post To Remain Vacant Till Congress Meets Unless Court Emergency Develops

(By International News Service)

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—President Roosevelt will withhold his appointment of a supreme court justice to succeed the late Justice Pierce Butler until the January session of congress, he indicated today shortly after arriving at his Hudson valley home.

Only development of an emergency in the high court docket would bring about an earlier appointment, he hinted.

At the moment, Mr. Roosevelt said he was giving no thought to choosing his fifth appointee to the supreme court—a nomination which will give the New Deal control of the high tribunal for some years to come.

The president kept his own counsel as he returned to his home for another week-end. It was certain he would make no appointment until after a suitable period of mourning for Justice Butler.

Inasmuch as Mr. Roosevelt's fifth appointment will seal New Deal control of the supreme court for some years to come, the matter of naming a man took rank with "keeping America out of war" and decision on a third term in the list of his most pressing problems.

Murphy Logical Choice.

General decision on the part of Washington political reporters that Attorney General Murphy would step up was based on the fact the late Justice Butler came from Minnesota and was a Catholic. Murphy, as former governor of Michigan and a Catholic, was held the logical choice, particularly in view of his present position.

Fitting the same prescription is Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens, of the District of Columbia court of appeals, who was appointed from Utah.

Murphy . . . favored.

Another name not to be overlooked in the speculation was that of U. S. Court of Appeals Justice

Deficit Reported by 6 of 10 Agencies of Community Fund

Six of the 10 agencies operating under the Community Fund or receiving aid from it closed their fiscal year last June with a deficit, according to the annual of the Community Fund, given out today by Sidney L. Palmer, executive secretary.

Two of the agencies had a balance and two expended the same amount they received. The largest balance was reported by Mansfield General hospital which received $5,650 from the fund last year. The hospital's total revenue for the year was $184,299 and its expenditures were $170,243, leaving a balance of $14,055.

The only other organization to have a balance left at the end of the year was the Girl Scouts which came under the Community Fund for the first time last year and which operated under a trained leader only part time. Income for the year was $872, most of which came from the fund, and their expenditures were $701, leaving a balance of $171.

The Visiting Nurses had the greatest deficit. They were $1,020 short when the year closed. They were allotted $6,025 by the Community Fund and received only $1,655 for 6,923 visits made for nursing care and instructions to homes in the city. Their expenditures for the year were $8,700.

The Y. M. C. A. had the second largest deficit. Its total in-

PREDICTS MORE TROUBLE WITH PENSION PLANS

Ohio Farm Leader Tells County Bureau Schemes Result of Jobless, Farm Problems.

SAYS DEMOCRACY ON TRIAL

250 Farmers at Annual Meet Re-elect Smith President, Adopt 14 Resolutions.

We will continue to have trouble with such schemes as the Bigelow plan as long as farm income is down and there are 10 or 11 million unemployed men in the nation, Murray D. Lincoln, secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau, said last night at the annual meeting of the Richland County Farm Bureau at the First Methodist church.

More than 250 farmers turned out for the session at which 14 resolutions were adopted and officers elected.

"We defeated the Bigelow plan this time, but we are not done with it yet and we won't be until we find some way to solve our economic problem," Lincoln said.

"Democracy is on trial in these times. The question is whether it can stand up. Statism comes when people fail to make the democratic processes work, and now it is up to industry and labor to see it through and find jobs for the unemployed to ward off the threat of war and dictatorships," he asserted.

Points to Price of Peace.

"We must consider whether we are willing to pay the price of peace. There are economic reasons behind every war and now it is up to us to decide whether we want to exploit our young men for the sake of monetary gain or stick it out and find a better solution for our economic troubles."

He accused the national administration of trying to divert the attention of the people from

Ruth Marie Rubens Renounces American Citizenship.

MOSCOW—(UP)—Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens has become "Citizeness Ruth Friederichovna Boerger of the Soviet Union," and probably never will be heard of again in the United States where her status stirred up a spectacular passport fraud and espionage case a year ago.

She has renounced her American citizenship to become a Russian citizen and has settled in a Ukrainian city, the United Press learned today.

She probably never again will see her nine-year-old daughter or her mother, and step-father, who live in Miami, Fla. Soviet citizens rarely are permitted to leave the country except on government missions. But neither will she have to go to trial on the passport fraud charges pending against her in the United States.

The fire started in a second floor storage room of the Acme Awning company and spread rapidly. Sparks started another fire on the roof of an adjoining building of a wholesale grocery firm.

Fireman Herbert Y. Wilmes was cut by glass fragments which showered into the street.

Storm Troopers Occupy School After Clashes

Czech Students Demonstrate At Prague Square; 5,000 German Troops Sent To Augment Police; All University Buildings Placed Under Guard.

(By United Press)

PRAGUE—Armed German storm troopers and German policemen occupied the Czech university and high school at 2 a. m. today, and later, reinforced by the Gestapo—secret police—occupied the student house.

Yesterday, 12 persons had been injured by a Czech Fascist demonstration in Wenceslas square, heart of the city, and the day before, Czech students, shouting "For Freedom," had been dispersed by storm troopers.

Today, armed German storm troopers took up positions alongside Czech policemen in front of university buildings.

At 10:30 a. m. motorcycles and cars entered the city bearing additional storm troopers armed with field guns. There were believed to be 5,000 of them.

Czech police, nomially in charge ever since the German occupation of Bohemia-Moravia, dealt with yesterday's demonstration in the square. About 300 Czech Fascists had turned out for a meeting called by a newly-formed right-wing group in defiance of an order by the Czech government forbidding the meeting

Defy Police Clubs.

Police had been posted in advance in the square and mounted policemen guarded the hall where the meeting had been scheduled. The Fascists gathered, refused to disperse, and their leader, named Rys, shouted: "Away with the government which is being paid by the English."

Foot police then used their batons and mounted police went into action, to clear the square and nearby streets. The Fascists reformed at several points and had to be charged repeatedly.

Two Fascists were so seriously hurt they had to be carried away, and 10 fled home, badly injured. Yesterday, German storm troopers watched the demonstration without interfering. They said it was "strictly a domestic question."

German quarters said today's action against the students was in retaliation for Wednesday's demonstration, which the storm troopers broke up after arresting 10 students.

LONDON: Hitler, Aids Scrap Over Offensive, British Claim

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—High British military authorities expressed "conviction" today that what they called Germany's "indecisive tactics" on the western front were the result of disagreement between Adolf Hitler and his general staff.

These authorities did not disclose what information they had to support this view but said they considered it bolstered because Germany had not organized direct, hard blows against Britain and France which, they said, was the usual German plan.

There were hints also of sharp retaliation against any bombardment of British cities.

Asked what British policy would be toward any bombing of open cities or any use of gas, one source referred questions to international law and to provisions for retaliation where the law is violated.

The war office announced that 20,000 men were needed for home defense battalions of the British army.

The announcement was made as recruiting opened to double the strength of the women's auxiliary territorial service.

Germany's first stroke against British shipping in the Indian ocean started naval experts guessing where the Nazi pocket battleships are roving.

Sources here advanced the possibility the 10,000-ton German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer sank the 706-ton Admiral tanker Africa Shell Wednesday off the coast of Mozambique, Portuguese East Africa.

A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Capetown, South Africa, however, said such a theory was discounted by authorities there.

The Reuters report said the tanker was sent to the bottom in Portuguese territorial waters, and that some sources suggested the attacker might have been an armed merchantman of about 10,000 tons.

British reports have not located the Admiral Scheer since Sept. 30, when the British steamer Clement was sunk off the coast of Brazil—about 4,500 miles from where the Africa Shell went down—but it had been considered likely here the German warship rounded Cape Horn into the Pacific ocean.

The Admiral Scheer and the Deutschland, another 10,000-ton Nazi pocket battleship, have been at sea more than a month.

BERLIN: Nazis Cold To Any Attempted Roosevelt Mediation

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—Authorized sources said today any general mediation offer by President Roosevelt at this time would be "uninteresting" so far as Germany is concerned.

France's injection of Austrian restitution into the issues at stake in the European conflict, these sources declared, shows conclusively the Allies regard all peace talks as futile.

However, should President Roosevelt ask both sides to disclose war aims to him with a view to finding some common basis for mediation, Germany would be most likely to respond, these sources intimated.

German guns will speak in an unmistakable manner in ensuing weeks, it was hinted.

The western front was quiet today, however. A communique from the army high command said:

"In the west, with minor local artillery annoyance fire, no noteworthy fighting activity."

An inspired announcement of yesterday that Germany "must liberate Europe from the unbearable yoke of British rule of might" was seen as foreshadowing offensive rather than defensive war. It was the most specific statement of German war aims in several weeks.

The declaration against the "British rule of might" was the German response to the British-

H'RAY! WASHING DISHES BY HAND RISKY FOR YOU!

Scientists Say China Cleaned by Machines Has Fewer Bacteria Left.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Women who dislike dish-washing can now claim this practice should be barred as a health hazard.

They can quote records from the American Journal of Public Health. There Walter D. Ward and G. M. Dack of the University of Chicago report a comparison of hand-washed and machine-washed household dishes.

They point out that although much attention has been given to health hazards, such as bacteria, in dish-washing in large establishments, little heed has been paid to the similar domestic problem.

They tested two types of home dish-washing machines against hand-washing procedures.

Results: by hand 25 bacteria on each plate after washing; by machine, 11 germs per plate.

Cups sterilized before being washed picked up bacteria, again to the discredit of hand washing. The hand cleansed cups averaged 18 bacteria each against 7 for the machine washed.

The machines used hotter rinse water was not the explanation of vestigators concluded the hotter watre was not the explanation of less germs. This they credited to the greater washing-away action of rinsing in the machines.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Her iron resolution, however, enabled her to throw up her head defiantly and stare at them insolently as they reached her table. But she had hurriedly put her hands beneath the table, and I was as sure as if I had seen them that they were clenched so tightly as to drive the nails cruelly into the palms.

Both Harry and Lillian were busy now, for the three at the other table were at such angles as to make it impossible for one person to read all three sets of lips The result was to make the collogy at our table a dramatic reproduction of the dialogue at the other.

"Ah! Dicky-bird!" the woman said with insolent mockery, "so you've changed your mind about leaving us' I don't believe, however, I have had the pleasure of knowing the charming reason for your change of mind. Or have we met before?"

She threw a challenging glance at Edith, but could not conceal the start she gave at the quiet answer she received.

"Yes, many times," Edith said coolly, but I realized that she was speaking in the disguised voice she had used for my mystification when I talked to her on the telephone when she was at Dicky's studio.

The woman looked at her more closely.

"I knew that hair was phony," she muttered. Then she looked Edith over with insolent arrogance.

"You're too much for me, baby, just now," she said, "although it will come to me in another minute or two. I suppose you're one of these 'G-women' we're hearing so much about these days."

Edith gave a distinct start, but before she could speak in affirmation or negation, Dicky struck in easily.

"Your powers of deduction are evidently honed sharp by much use," he said pleasantly "But I think we could talk better if we drew up another chair and sat down to wait for the return of—your 'boy friend' shall we say?"

"He won't be back."

"You mean he's walked out on you?" Dicky said, and I realized that something Edith had told him had given him freedom from the yoke of terror which had held him so long. "Oh, no! I can't believe that! Suppose we substitute another hypothesis. It isn't possible, is it, that he could have gone out into the street to arrange for my involuntary escort to some place where I might perhaps—under proper persuasion—change my mind about the shocking ultimatum you gave me a few minutes ago?"

The woman stared at him, evidently trying to cover with a "poker face" her terrified reaction to his unexpected knowledge. And then her gangster companion came back into the room, and Dicky bowed mockingly.

"You see!" he said. "I was right. He didn't walk out on you after all."

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Nov. 18.

RATHER adverse conditions prevail on this day, according to the auguries of the ruling planetary aspects There may be sudden and disagreeable upsets, with friction, inharmony or quarrels with superiors, strangers or others of erratic temperament. Generally restive, unsettled and turbulent conditions are indicated, and these may be best side-stepped by close attention to rigid details of business, employment or hard work, which hold promise of recognition and suitable reward. Patience and perseverance win the day.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of sudden upheavals or turbulence, coming with whirlwind velocity and ending in quite unforeseen and possibly disagreeable denouements. Avoid disputes, friction with superiors, employers and strangers, and shun all manner of eccentric or revolutionary indulgences. Patience, hard work, close application may help in mitigating adverse and regrettable circumstances. Let prudence and restraint hold sway, with the intuitions a guiding factor.

A child born on this day may be studious, industrious and earnest despite erratic, restless and ill-tempered moods or outbursts.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROMPT ACTION DOES IT.

In some bridge situations you must bide your time, holding up your high card or cards until the psychological moment arrives. In others, prompt action is necessary, going up with your big card as the sole means of breaking connections between the two hands of the opponents. This is one kind of spot in which "second-hand low," the old whist maxim, has to be reversed. Usually it is done only by the careful and thorough player who counts the exact or probable distribution of his opponents' hands accurately.

Dealer: West, North-South vulnerable).

After West's pass here, North opened the bidding with 1-Spade. South answered with 2-Diamonds, North bid 2-Spades, South 2-No Trumps and North 3-No Trumps. West led the club 10 to the Q and K, and East fired back the J to knock out the re-entry for the spades. The declarer let this win and then took the third club in dummy. He entered his own hand with a finesse of the heart Q, then tackled the spades.

The first spade trick was the 3, 6, 10 and Q. After refusing a finesse of the returned diamond, South then finessed the spade J successfully, dropped the K with the A, ran two other spades and completed game with the heart A and club 8.

Had West thought, he would have counted South for exactly two spades; with three he should have supported the rebid major; with one he should not have tried No Trump. Upon this reading he could have deduced that play of his K on the first spade round would have killed the suit and beaten the contract by enabling East to keep his Q to kill a second-round finesse or to play it on the third round if North used the A on the second. In fact, this play would have held South to either five or six tricks, setting him either three or four, dependent on whether he took a trick in spades or not.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

WHEN the days are as bright and pleasant as they have been this fall—with mild temperatures until the middle of November, certainly none of us have any complaint against the weather. . . . But nevertheless lots of folks are already starting on their winter sojourns to warmer climes.

Marianne

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney L. Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mansfield have their fingers crossed and are really hoping the third time will prove to be the charm. . . . Because they're planning to leave, for the third time, for a vacation in Florida Tuesday. . . . They intend to drive down through Winchester, Va., and the Smoky mountains—down the eastern seacoast of Florida and up the western, to return in about 15 days.

* * *

Other Florida goers are Mayor and Mrs. Claude M. Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Taylor, who left this morning for Tampa, where they will spend the Thanksgiving holiday with some of the mayor's relatives. . . . They are driving down, and plan to go to St. Cloud before returning home about the first of December.

When you're reading the December issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, you'll be pleased to note that the poem, "Understanding," was written by a Mansfielder, Helen Loomis Linham. . . . Mrs. Linham's name has been included in the International Blue Book, a biographical dictionary of prominent men and women.

ALTHOUGH they seemed too modest to tell about it themselves, I received a letter from Ohio university today telling me that Mansfield fathers visiting their sons on Dad's day at the school last week-end found themselves in the very middle of a social swirlpool. . . . M. Vale Scouten was visiting his son, Cliff, who is a senior. . . . C. P. Nye visited his son, Dick, who is also a senior . . . and J. M. Davidson dropped in on his son, Bill, a junior. . . . Upon arriving in Athens Saturday, they were guests of Chi Omega sorority for luncheon and the football game with Miami university, which they attended with the sorority in a body . . . That evening they went to a dinner dance as guests of Alpha Xi Delta sorority, and Sunday noon they were entertained at dinner by the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Martha and Bertha Sauder, Emma Dent, Mrs. Ray Dent, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Yarmon have just returned from a motor trip to Richmond, Va., and Washington, D. C. . . . At Richmond they visited with the Yarmon's daughter, Emma, who's taking advanced courses in nursing at William and Mary college—Emma, you probably recall, was a nurse at Mansfield General hospital before going to Richmond in September.

THIS is indeed an important week in the life of Jack Shephard, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Shephard. . . . He just passed his final examinations at Fort Hayes army post in Columbus and left this week for New York City—and from there he will go to Panama, where he'll be stationed as a private and study in the aviation corps.

* * *

BY MAIL AND TELEPHONE: Mrs. George Blecker is stopping at the Barbizon Plaza while vacationing in New York City this week. . . . Mrs. E. J. Gilbert has gone to California to visit friends in some of the larger cities—and perhaps they passed en route because Mrs. Grace Kenson has just come east from her home in Hollywood, to visit with her mother, Mrs. N. M. Wolfe, until the first of the year.

Miss Jane Sowash, General Chairman for Holiday Dance, Announces Committee on Decorations at Social.

MEMBERS of Beta, Gamma and Delta chapters of Gamma Gamma Gamma sorority motored to Ashland last evening, where they were entertained at Pelat's by members of Epsilon chapter. Miss Naomi Plank was in charge of arrangements for the business and social affair.

Miss Vivian Miller, president, conducted the meeting, at which time Miss Jane Sowash, general chairman of the sorority's Christmas formal dance, reported on the work of her committees. She announced further that Miss Beverly Schwein, Mrs. Eugene Earick and Mrs. John Courtney will assist Miss Bettie Myers with decorations of the Mansfield-Leland hotel ball room for that occasion.

Mrs. Jack McKnight gave a report on the dental clinic, and Miss Sowash stated that there would be a short meeting in the Gamma chapter club rooms at 7:30 o'clock on Dec. 15, the evening before the dance.

Following the business, bridge was played at five tables with prizes going to Miss Marianne Springer and Mrs. Earl Herrick. Luncheon was then served at one long table.

There is no joint meeting of the sorority chapters scheduled for December, but election of new officers will be held at the meeting on Jan. 18. Beta chapter members will be hostesses at that time, with Mrs. Clare Bell in charge.

Following the business meeting a buffet luncheon was served, and games were played. The Misses Berges, Yirga and Young were named to the social affairs committee for the month. Plans were made to hold informal initiation Nov. 22. The next meeting will be Dec. 11 at the home of Miss Judy Kelly, West Third street. Snyder Reminds Favored Tygers of 1938 Defeat

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

COACH CLARK ("Pore Clark") Shaughnessy of the hapless University of Chicago team won a game today—a game of ' "moanin' low."

The coach whose football team has piled up a total of 12 points against its opponents 267, was awarded a prize given annually by the athletic round table of Spokane to the football mentor who writes the sobbin'est letter on football prospects. Coach Shaughnessy's letter:

"Gentlemen:

"I'm sitting in the locker room trying to work out a play that can get our fullback up to the line of scrimmage without a broken leg when in walks a guy without knocking.

" 'Listen brother,' he said. " 'I don't know who you are but I'm a football coach. Listen:

" 'The woes of Poland would only half fill my cup of gall and vinegar.

" 'What a wealth of material the alumni sent me this year. They gave the school $15,000,000 for new books but what did they give me? A sideshow that should have been palmed off on a circus.

" 'The ends were seven-footers and tipped the scales at 130—who says nothing went over their heads?

"The guards charged like Benedict Arnold and, on defense, a whole posse was good for 800 yards through them. You can throw in the City of Flint for good measure. I have seen fewer holes in cheese.

First Down This Season, Too.

"THE center hasn't had his first shave. From the bench I could see the first down on his upper lip. (That was the only first down our team made this season, too).

" 'The two halfbacks were expelled from a school for unnecessary poughness. They were two days late in returning "The Grapes of Wrath" and a librarian squealed.

" 'The school won't buy us scoring equipment but the athletic board is coming across nicely. They have promised to put in traffic lights in our end zone to cut down the collisions in our backfield. A toll bridge would help more.'

" "The man stopped. I took his hand and said: 'My friend, let me tell you something. I've coached the Chicago team this year. I'm making no complaints, no alibis. But I coached Chicago this year.'

"I'll let you hear more later.
Mournfully Yours,
Clark Shaughnessy."

* * *

"P. S.—One of the Chicago newspapermen suggests that if I win the equipment, you throw in in an adding machine."

Unsung Heroes: Simpson Team.

THIS department's nomination for the "Unsung Heroes" of the year: The Simpson junior high school players.

They did not play a single game this year outside of intersquad tilts, but they never missed a practice session.

DeHaven

They did not have a grass-covered football field to soften the bumps, but they never complained because they were forced to practice on a bumpy stone-covered gridiron.

They did not whimper or fuss because they were not allowed to play against regular foes: they just tackled and blocked a little harder in their scrimmages.

This department will be disappointed if the Simpson group fails to develop into one of the greatest football teams ever to represent ol' Mansfield high.

Much credit for keeping this bunch of Bulldogs interested through during a season of monotonous drills on a treacherous field must be handed to Bob (Jeff) DeHaven, Simpson coach, who accomplished a fine job under discouraging conditions.

Standout for Shelby

BOB LEHMAN . . . he's one of the Shelby Whippets the Tygers will have to watch closely when the Bordertown athletes come to Mansfield Saturday for their annual game. Lehman was regarded as one of the finest ends in the N. C. O. conference this season.

Vogel, Ringside Cafe High In B Pin League

Roll Scores of 639 and 2835 to Set Scoring Pace At Meder Alleys.

FRITZ VOGEL and the Ringside Cafe club held the spotlight in the Commercial B league at the Meder alleys last night.

Finishing with scores of 226 and 232, Vogel accumulated a 639 total as he led the Cafe team to a high 2835 count and three wins over the Kochheiser Sports, paced by Young's 591. The Ringside club put together scores of 906, 970 and 959.

The Ringside keglers remained two games ahead of the Satterlee restaurant club in the tight league race. The Satterlee team swept its series with the Yuncker Sports to climb out of a tie for second place with the idle Mansfield Printers.

The Mansfield Rugs continued in the title race by taking two decisions from the Shelby Cycles, led by Neil Swank's 593.

In the other matches, Adams came through with a 595 to lead the Mohican Chevrolets to a 2759 series and a pair of wins over the Southern hotel and the Possum Run golf club added three victories at the expense of Ohio Public Service.

Rolling scores of 164, 168 and 181, Thelma Linster reached the 513 figures to establish the individual scoring pace in the City Women's league. She led the Richland Printers to two wins over Brenner's Jewelers, paced by Mary McMullen's 499.

Donna Schuster collected 479 pins as the Long Bar took three games from the Morgan Dry Cleaners, and Sophia Meder hit 466 as Carek's Florists won two games from the Modern Beauty Salon, paced by Margaret Baker's 465.

Fashioning a 461, Idella Eberhart was high as Kobacker's store won two games from Shelley's Candies.

Orland Grable of the Shear Room led the pin toppling in the Westinghouse B league with a 563 count, and Jimmy Barrett of Enamel No 2 followed with a 562.

Negin of the No. 1 team was high in the B'nai Brith league with a 529.

Bantams Book Lions, Skippies

Announcement of games with the Newark Lions and Cleveland Skippies was made today by Frank C. Campbell, business manager of the Adams Bantams.

The Mansfield bantamweight eleven will meet the Newark team, this year's Central Ohio district champion, at Blue Goose field at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. The Adams club will face the Skippies in the preliminary to the Cleveland Rams' final game in the Cleveland stadium, Campbell said.

PLANS TO IMPROVE GUN RANGE NEAR MT. GILEAD

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The executive committee of the Ohio Rifle and Pistol Association will meet here on Nov. 26 to arrange plans for the 15th annual Mid-West Small Bore Rifle shoot to be held in Columbus, Feb. 23-25 at Fort Hayes barracks.

The committee also will plan improvements for the state rifle range between Mansfield and Mount Gilead.

UP TO DODGERS

NEW YORK — (UP) — Van Mungo, pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, announced today in a letter to Secretary John McDonald that he would sign his 1940 contract at the club's figure.

OXFORD — (UP) — Mills Brandes, regular sophomore center on the Miami university football team, was out for the rest of the season today with a siege of mumps. He is from Sandusky.

Fears Let-Down Against Shelby

Bengal Coach to Send First-String Lineup Against Whippets In Saturday's Game.

FEW Shelby football teams have been easy marks for the Tygers, and there is no reason to suspect that the visitors will be exceptions when the ancient rivalry is renewed at Stadium field at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, although the Whippets will roar into the bengal lair with a team somewhat below the Bordertown shool's standard.

As in the case of Ashland, another former N. C. O. conference rival, Shelby, annually points for the Mansfield game.

The result of this game can make or break a season for Shelby, so to speak, and a victory would be particularly welcome this week as the Whippets did not fare as well this year as they have in the recent past.

* * *

Tied for the conference title last year, the Whippets finished in a deadlock for second place with Ashland this season in a race completely dominated by a powerful Marion club.

Query

Victorious over Galion, 25 to 7, last week, Shelby will come to Mansfield Saturday with everything to gain and little to lose.

Mansfield is heavily-favored in the pre-game dope, but the Tygers had a tough ball game last week, and Coach Paul Snyder fears a let-down.

In an attempt to keep the Tygers on edge, Snyder has been reminding his charges of last year's game, which the Whippets annexed by a 26 to 13 count.

Of course, Shelby has no Harold Bliss to shoot against the Tygers this year, but Coach Bill Query's lineup is not exactly without luminaries. He has two fine ball players in Bill Yosick, probably the outstanding back in the N. C. O. wheel this season, and Bob Lehman, a good offensive end.

* * *

Despite the pre-game dope, Snyder will start his regular lineup, with Howard Hershey, Martin Henke and Jim Templeton doing the ball carrying.

Draw Up Schedule At Y Next Week

Eligibility lists will be filed and a tentative schedule drawn up at a meeting of the City Class A basketball league at the Y. M. C. A. at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday.

The opening of the league was tentatively set for the first Wednesday in January at a meeting held at the Y last night. Practice games with out-of-town teams are planned previous to the opening.

Teams represented at last night's meeting were the Westinghouse company, Yuncker Sports store, Mansfield Athletic Supply, Mansfield Hi-Speeds and Mansfield Tires.

Plans to Bid For Title Bout

CLEVELAND —(AP)—Attorney-Promoter Bob Brickman said today he might bid for the world's bantamweight championship bout in which Georgie Pace, Cleveland, will make his first title defense.

Promoter Jack Kearns announced in Detroit that he had signed Pace to risk his crown before Jan. 12 against Lou Salica, of New York; K. O. Morgan, of Detroit, or Tony Olivera, of Oakland, Calif. Kearns said the bout would be in the city which will "give us the best offer."

DENIED CUSTODY OF SON, FIGHTS ALIMONY HIKE

BARNSTABLE, Mass. — (INS) — Denied custody of his two-year-old son, Johnny Broaca, Cleveland Indian pitching star, today was fighting a demand of his divorced wife, Mrs. Cornelia Ireland Broaca, for an alimony increase from $18 to $75 per week.

Judge Collen C. Campbell ruled that the boy was too young to be separated from his mother and continued the hearing on Mrs. Broaca's plea for more alimony.

Hawkeyes Pin Victory Hopes on Nile Kinnick

By CHESTER YOULL

CHICAGO — (INS) — By the time dusk envelops the gridirons of the midwest tomorrow night, the Big Ten football championship may be all wrapped up and filed away, bringing to a close, for all practical purposes, the stirring 1939 campaign.

Experts today were stressing the fact that Minnesota has a fine chance to crush Iowa at Iowa City, despite the gallant fighting spirit of the Hawkeyes. Just as Michigan went onto the field against the Gophers last week with the threat of Hal Van Every and George Franck hanging over its head, so does Iowa tomorrow.

The Hawkeyes again are pinning their hopes on Nile Kinnick in the backfield and Erwin Prasse and Mike Enich in the line, but they have a tough job cut out for them. So fast and tricky are Van Every and Franck and so versatile, that the enemy defense never is able to understand from which point Minnesota will strike, giving the Gophers an enormous advantage.

Now the point is this: If Minnesota wins, as many believe it will, Ohio State can win the championship simply by beating Illinois at Columbus. Regardless of what happened in the closing games the following week, no other eleven would be able to dislodge the Buckeyes from the top.

Ohio State is obviously a stronger team than Illinois and, unless the Zuppke outfit is able to duplicate its victory over Michigan, the Bucks probably will come home in front by a couple of touchdowns. Minnesota, in addition, looks to be at least a touchdown better than Iowa, and there you have it.

Another game exciting the midwest brings Notre Dame and Northwestern together at South Bend.

50,000 to See Wily Illini Battle Bucks

Ohio State Favored Heavily In Saturday's Game On Comparative Score Basis.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Wily Bob Zuppke, whose battling Illini upset Michigan two weeks ago for the year's most startling grid result, invades Ohio's capital today for Saturday's crucial Big Ten clash with the Bucks.

Ohio State, riding the Western conference crest with four wins in a row, is favored heavily on a camparative score basis, but the Bucks, remembering past upsets at Zuppke's hands, are taking nothing for granted.

The charges of Coach Francis Schmidt can clinch at least a share of the Western conference crown by beating Illinois, even should they lose next week's contest to Michigan.

Close to 50,000 fans are expected to witness the Buckeyes' homecoming game, with the attendance soaring above that figure should good weather prevail. In 25 previous meetings with Illinois, Ohio State won 13, lost 11 and tied one.

The famed "Illibuck," trophy for which the two teams scrap, will go to the winner. The huge wooden trophy, shaped like a turtle, lost both front legs while on display at the New York world's fair, but has been repaired.

Ohio's squad is in tip-top shape for the fray, bringing a doleful moan from the Buckeye trainer, Tucker Smith.

"Things have been going too well," Smith said today. "The weather has been fine, the boys haven't been getting hurt, and the practices have been grand. I'm afraid it can't last. I'm really afraid of this Illinois gang."

Zuppke and his boys were due in Columbus about 3:30 p. m. They will not remain in Columbus, but will go to nearby Magnetic Springs for a light workout and a night of rest far from the sounds of the city and the revelry of homecoming crowds.

Comparative scores registered against common foes this year indicate the Bucks have a four-touchdown edge on Illinois, but Ohio State supporters are expecting no such margin. Illinois lost 6-7 to Indiana, while the Bucks beat the Hoosiers 24 to 0. Northwestern handed Illinois a 13-0 setback, and the Bucks beat the Wildcats by the same score.

Ohio also has conference victories over Minnesota and Chicago, while Illinois beat Michigan and Wisconsin in league warfare.

* * *

Other games involving Ohio teams Saturday are: Kent State at Baldwin Wallace, Mt. Union at Wittenberg, Wooster at Denison, Marshall at Xavier, Miami at Dayton, Heidelberg at Detroit Tech, John Carroll at Western Reserve, Wilberforce at Lincoln university, Oberlin at University of Chicago, Ohio university at Michigan Western State Teachers, Muskingum at Georgetown, West Liberty State Teachers at Akron, South Dakota at Cincinnati, Westminster at Youngstown, Long Island U. at Toledo, and Bowling Green at Ypsilanti.

CAMDEN, N. J.—Bob Wagner, 220, New York, defeated Dynamite Joe Cox, 228, Kansas City, two of three falls.

Miami, Fla., Site Of Title Game

NEW YORK—(AP)—The sports world is ready to do its bit to help stamp out infantile paralysis.

Opening its campaign to raise money for that purpose, the national sports council of the committee for the celebration of the president's birthday has booked a national high school football championship—the Scarlet Bowl game—for Miami, Fla., Christmas day. But this game, important as it is, will be only one of a thousand sports events sponsored by the sports' council.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A rule of the Ohio High School Athletic Association today discouraged Ohio teams from competing Christmas day in the "Scarlet Bowl" game at Miami, Fla., for the national scholastic football championship. Commissioner H. R. Townsend said the rule prohibits contests after Dec. 2, and cited penalty for violation as a year's suspension from the association.

Conn Favorite In Title Bout

Meets Gus Lesnevich in 2nd Defense of Crown.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Handsome is as handsome does—and in this case "Handsome" (in the person of Billy Conn, the Pittsburgh Adonis) should do very well for himself.

For Billy will be an overwhelming favorite as he lays his light-heavyweight title on the line tonight against Gus Lesnevich, rugged Cliffside (N. J.) scrapper, in a Madison Square Garden show.

* * *

The fight will be Conn's second defense of the title he won from Melio Bettina last July 13 in the same ring. In a return engagement with Melio at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh Sept. 25, Billy retained the title with a decision after 15 gruelling rounds.

* * *

Tonight's title bout will be broadcast at 10 p. m. by the WJZ-NBC network.

Perrysville Cage Club Opens Sked

PERRYSVILLE — Perrysville opens its basketball schedule when it entertains Big Prarie on the home court tonight. Perrysville, with 12 lettermen back, meets such formidable teams as last year's county champs, Sullivan, and runner-up, Nova. It will also play Lucas, last year's Richland county champion.

Perrysville, however, will miss Donald Kiner, Howard Shaull and George York, all being lettermen of last year. Skeet Kiner, a guard of last year, is ineligible this year.

York, a substitute center, moved to Shelby, and Shaull, a regular forward, to Loudonville.

BIDDING SLIPS AFTER ACTIVE MART OPENING

Hopeful Note in Week-End Trade Survey Helpful to Market Sentiment.

NEW YORK—The stock market today pointed moderately higher but bidding slackened after a fairly active opening.

Favored at the start were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodyear, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Armour, Allied Chemical, U. S. Gypsum, Boeing, Sears Roebuck, Allied Chemical and Montgomery Ward.

Hesitant were General Electric, Texas Corp., Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Consolidated Edison and General Motors.

Helpful to market sentiment was the hopeful note sounded by week-end trade surveys.

Dun & Bradstreet estimated retail spending topped the corresponding week a year ago by 8 to 16 per cent, although falling a trifle under the preceding week which included a large number of special sales events.

"A number of stores," the review said, "opened Christmas departments during the week and gift merchandise began to move in promising quantities. Purchasing was reported to be in the more expensive brackets."

Interesting to financial circles were figures of the federal reserve system disclosing that the "open market account" in the week ended Wednesday has sold $8,500,000 of bonds and $8,325,000 of notes which with the customary non-replacement of maturing bills, brought the aggregate decline in the banks, portfolio to $37,500,000.

Congress to Get Defense Fund Request of 2 Billion

PROGRAM TO CALL FOR 25 NEW WARSHIPS

Roosevelt Budget Message in January to Cover Increased Army and Navy Costs.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The administration will ask congress to provide between $2,000,000,000 and $2,500,000,000 for national defense in the forthcoming session, it was reported today, as officials hastened to complete the annual defense budget.

President Roosevelt may avoid asking the full amount when he submits his budget message to congress, confining his initial budget message to $1,700,000,000. Following the intensive national defense study now under way by army and navy strategists, further requests are expected to be submitted to congress by the president.

Naval expenditures for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 were estimated by the house appropriations naval subcommittee at $900,000,000.

This figure, however, would be increased by action of the president in expanding the army and navy. Unless congress curtails ship construction, navy appropriations are held certain to exceed $1,000,000,000.

Preliminary estimates indicate that $400,000,000 will be sought for new ship construction alone, which would make possible the laying down of keels for 25 new warships and continuing work on 144 other naval vessels.

More Guns, Munitions.

With a program under way calling for 5,500 fighting planes, the army is also expected to ask congress for additional funds for stores of munitions, more guns and other equipment.

National defense plans must include protection of both coasts, and in spite of the European war, there is just as much danger to the United States from the east as from the west, Alaskan delegate Anthony J. Dimond said today. He will press the January congress for action on his bill calling for $100,000,000 worth of new naval defenses in Alaska.

SHARE IN RELIEF

City, County, Shelby Get $3,370 to Pay Bills of $9,000.

Mansfield, Richland county and Shelby were allotted a total of $3,370 in state relief funds today toward payment of October bills amounting to about $9,000.

The three relief areas also heard the welcome news that they will get a larger allocation of state money next month to meet increasing relief bills.

Charles L. Sherwood, state welfare director, said $1,000,000 will be distributed to Ohio counties and cities in December, compared to $750,000 this month.

The November allotments amount to about 33 per cent of the total relief bills. The cities and counties must make up the balance from their own funds.

In today's allocation Mansfield received $1,820; Richland county, $1,239, and Shelby, $311. Each of the districts had to provide more money than they received as matching funds before they could share in the state money.

pay medical bills and moving costs of women friends.

Sabbatino obtained from Dewey a letter Mayor F. H. LaGuardia had written him on May 17 and the district attorney's reply of May 18.

The defense counsel said he wanted the letters to show that "certain forces seek the destruction of this defendant and, on account of these forces, individuals who have testified and handled the case have been imbued with a spirit which justifies the defense in inferring that documents have disappeared and evidence has been twisted."

The letters turned out to be an offer of evidence of city sales tax violations by the Bund and Dewey's grateful reply.

Assistant District Attorney Herman J. McCarthy, who is prosecuting the case, then took his chief under cross-examination, and Dewey again denied that he was motivated by personal hostility against Kuhn.

Although he had "no use" for the Bund, Dewey said that fact did not influence the prosecution.

He denied that politics had anything to do with the case.

SIGN AFFIDAVITS

4 Attorneys Names on Bayer's Petition for Counsel Fees.

Four Mansfield attorneys signed affidavits for Atty. Joseph A. Bayer and other lawyers for Michael Hallabrin, Mansfield, plaintiff in a taxpayer's suit, when Hallabrin's counsel applied for fees in the case, Fred R. Zellner, county clerk of courts, disclosed today.

The affidavits, attesting to the "reasonable value of services" given by Bayer and the other counsel for the plaintiff in the case, were signed by Attys. George W. Biddle, R. W. Stephenson, Stuart H. Cramer and Jacob Wagenhals. The case involves the estate of the late Frank B. Black of Mansfield.

The affidavits, which were submitted to the district appeals court at Ashland with the application for funds, cited that the law permits counsel in such cases to receive up to one-third of the tax money collected.

The court allowed Bayer and four attorneys from Canton and Massillon 20 per cent of any funds that might be collected.

BLECKER LISTS TOP EXPENSE

Reports He Spent $238 During Campaign, Most of Any Candidate to Date.

Atty. George H. Blecker, who was defeated for municipal judge at the Nov. 7 election, today had listed his campaign expenditures at $238, more than any other candidate who has reported so far to the board of elections.

Blecker, however, contributed $100 to the Democratic campaign fund and he included that in his report. In addition to Blecker's own expenditures, the Blecker-for-Judge committee spent $31.

Paul L. Kelley, re-elected city auditor for his eighth term, reported expenditures amounting to $160, all his own funds.

The Young Democratic Club of Richland county finished the campaign with a balance of $89.42, the treasurer, Ruth Durig, reported to the election board. The committee received $100 from the Democratic campaign committee and spent $10.58 for three rallies.

Other candidates who had reported today and the amount of their expenditures were:

Glenn A. Davidson, city treasurer, $44.96; Fred Miller, Fifth ward council, $7.50, both Democrats; Chester P. Monn, finance director, Shelby, $32.62, and Gail Haun, candidate for the same office, $28.

U. S. Vessel Fired Upon by Canadian Ship, Captain Says

SEATTLE, Wash. —INS— A Canadian warship fired a shot across the bow of an American passenger vessel at Prince Rupert, B. C., it was charged today after the Steamer North Coast docked in Seattle with 76 passengers from Alaska.

The allegation was made by Captain A. J. Borkland, skipper of the North Coast.

"When we arrived off Prince Rupert we were hailed by a Canadian government vessel and asked what we were doing there," Capt. Borkland said. "I told the officer I had reported I would arrive there, but he ordered me to stop and hoist international signal code flags.

"I kept my ship moving to prevent grounding while the flags were being located. Before they arrived the Canadian ship fired a shot. Then I brought her to a full stop."

Canadian naval officials at Esquimault station in Victoria said the Canadian ship was "within its rights to fire a shot when any vessel failed to halt after being ordered to do so."

HOLLYWOOD'S MAIDS, BUTLERS CELEBRATE WHILE STARS WORK

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD — Jack Benny buttoned his own waistcoat, Myrna Loy fixed the hooks-and-eyes on her evening gown, and every other star in movieland got along without a servant last night.

It was the night of the first annual dinner-dance of Hollywood butlers, maids, chauffeurs and cooks and it was held in the swankiest ballroom in town—the Biltmore. The only phoney in the crowd was the guest of honor, Arthur Treacher, who portrays a butler on the screen and employs his own off the screen.

Present were about 1,000 of the men and women who have an A-1 Blue Book rating at the service entrances of the elite homes of the film colony. They dined at the tables where their employers usually eat, and whooped it up mildly until 1 a. m.—everyone had the night off.

"We're the elite among Hollywood's domestics," explained James F. Till, chauffeur for Harold Lloyd, and president of the staff service bureau, "and we're celebrating."

The affair was billed as "informal," but the men and women who usually wear livery and uniforms went the limit. More than half the males were in tuxedos, and there were half a dozen tails. Every maid and cook wore the slinkiest of evening gows. There were rumors that some Hollywood film queens lent a dress or two from their high-priced wardrobes.

"I'm the only phoney in the crowd," remarked Treacher, "but they let me crash the gate."

Treacher enjoyed himself. He danced two rhumbas with Ronald Colman's maid. The butlers and maids of the service bureau held an informal meeting and elected him honorary president.

While butlers and other experts looked on critically, professional waiters woefully clinked the food on the table. It was a butler's dinner, not his master's — turkey, sweet potatoes, mince pie, coffee, $2.25 a plate.

Among the socially elite of the evening were Constance Bennett's butler, Andrew Schultz; Richard Barthelmess' butler, Tom Cook; Warner Baxter's butler and valet, Leonard Paul and James O'Conner; Jack Benny's butler and maid, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Drare, and Myrna Loy's entire retinue.

They hope to hold the affair every year as a rival to New York's famous butler's ball.

POLICE JAIL 9 IN FACTORY THEFTS

Quiz 7 Employes in Stealing of Electrical Appliances From Dominion Plant.

Nine persons, seven of whom police said were employes of the Dominion Electrical Manufacturing company were held in jail today for investigation in connection with the theft of appliances from the factory.

Officers said the four men, three women and two youths, were picked up yesterday and last night at their homes.

They accused the group of being implicated in a theft ring that was looting the factory of the goods and disposing of it outside the city.

As the result of raids on at least five different homes, officers said they had recovered approximately 30 pieces of electrical equipment ranging from large electric fans to small hair driers. Value of the loot was estimated at several hundred dollars.

Detectives who were questioning the group today said the thefts apparently had been carried on for a considerable time and operated through a watchman. Part of the loot was found in his home.

The employes, officers said, carried the appliances from the plant with the knowledge of the watchman whom they explained received his "cut" from the loot.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said those in jail included only part of the persons implicated and predicted that the total number of arrests may be boosted to 20 by tomorrow.

QUITO, Ecuador—(AP)—Aurelio Mosquera Navaez, president of Ecuador, died today.

FORT WAYNE, Ind.—(AP)—Joseph O. Miller went to the county clerk's office to get a license to marry Genevieve Miller.

The couple needed somebody to testify to their residence here. Miller telephoned three friends, but none would come to the office.

They all said, "you're kidding."

The clerk finally located a witness.

GIVEN WARNING

Restaurant Men Told to Get Licenses or Face Arrest.

The state today warned 25 restaurant operators in the Mansfield district with arrest unless they apply for their state restaurant licenses within the next five days.

Gayle Owens, deputy state fire marshal, said he had made a personal visit to each of the establishments warning the owners that they were delinquent in obtaining their permits. The issuance of state restaurant licenses is handled by the fire marshal's office.

Owens said the proprietors were warned that failure to obtain the permits would result in their arrest, pointing out that violation of the state law provides for a fine of $10 per day for each day that the owner operates without a permit.

$100,000 PWA CHECK ARRIVES

Federal Contributions to City School Building Program Now Totals $350,000.

The Mansfield board of education had received a $100,000 check today from the federal government as another PWA contribution to the city's million-dollar school building program.

The schools have now received $350,000 of the $450,000 the federal government agreed to allocate for the program. The final payment will not be made until the project is completed, probably soon after the first of the year.

The federal funds, with $550,000 provided by the city through a bond issue approved by the voters last year, financed the building program.

Included in the project were the new John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed junior high schools, the shop addition at Senior high school, and improvements to eight of the city's older elementary buildings.

Remodeling of the grade structures and construction of the Senior high school addition were completed several months ago. Work on the two new junior high buildings is nearing completion.

PEOPLE'S SPIRIT SEEN VITAL TO NAZIS' SUCCESS

Ability of Germans to Endure Harsh Privation Likely to Decide War's Result.

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE,
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

More and more it looks as though Hitler's success or failure in this war will depend on how stout the hearts of his people are in enduring harsh privation.

He is drawing on their fortitude right at the outset of a life and death struggle when their morale—their will to do—should be stimulated to the highest degree. He is banking on the efficacy of the Nazi discipline which he has imposed.

I can't get out of my mind the brief Berlin announcement putting the general public on a fiercely rigid clothing ration, in addition to the food restrictions already existing.

This order limits men to one suit, one shirt and five pairs of socks annually. Women are permited one suit, one morning dress and six pairs of stockings. Children's allowances correspond.

To me the question of supplies, especially as relating to public morale, is the one on which Germany will stand or fall.

That rationing announcement was one of the most significant, despite its brevity, to come out of Europe since the war started.

Between the lines, you can read much. You see determination to face any odds—precautionary preparations for a long war—already a shortage of materials which is causing anxiety — and perhaps fears that after all Russia isn't going to make up the great deficiency which Germany is bound to encounter unless she can get outside supplies

Cites Need of Imports.

This situation, of course, is exactly what the allied blockade is aiming at—to crack the civilian morale of Germany.

Officials claim that so long as Germany has fairly good harvests and the Balkan granaries remain open, the 8,600,000-ton grain reserve need not be touched. Indeed, they boast that they can defy the blockade.

Many economic experts get a different slant on the situation. Germany has to import some 20 per cent of her food. The Balkans cannot supply this deficiency, although Russia possibly could if she would. There are vital war materials which neither the Balkans nor Russia can produce—and the blockade cuts those off.

One of Germany's great difficulties is that she lacks cash with which to buy from those neutrals still open to her. Perhaps because of this some of the Balkans have been selling for gold to the allies supplies which Germany needs and normally would get.

Thus much depends on Russia's intentions toward Germany, and the soviet ability to deliver the goods—if it wants to.

However, there is a good deal more involved than Russian willingness to cooperate.

The East Prussian newspaper Koenigsberger Allgemeine Zeitung recently put a point on it like this:

"Certainly the present state of affairs compels one to estimate conservatively the transportation facilities available for supplying Germany with raw materials of Russian origin. Hence every article must be examined carefully as to how essential it is for Germany."

Ultimately the whole thing likely will simmer down to the question of how much the German people can take in the way of physical hardships without a breakdown of morale.

NOW BOATS GO 'PIG-A-BACK'

LONG BEACH, Calif. —(AP)— Passengers on trans-Pacific vessels may rub their eyes and wonder if they're seeing things, but that will really be one boat sailing on top of another.

The bottom one is the British steamer Sheaf Crown, the one above the Russian fireboat Dozorniy. The British ship is hauling the Dozorniy 9,850 nautical miles from New York to Vladivostok and has it lashed on its deck. The cost of loading it, with heavy cranes, was $3,600.

FINDS WAY TO OUTWIT NAZIS

LONDON —(AP)— A German Jew has found a new way of defeating the Nazi currency regulations—to the tune of $280,000.

A British lawyer called to Berlin to take details of British stock certificates, watched astounded as his client threw them on the fire.

After reaching England the refugee had the lawyer file a sworn statement as to the destruction of the certificates. Under British law this enabled him to obtain the necessary duplicates—at a cost of around $7.20.

Mansfield News-Journal
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1939.

Small boys learn that it is easier to coast than to climb—but some of them forget this after they grow up.

There's always a bright side, and the University of Chicago isn't even under suspicion of subsidizing its football players.

Having been deprived of their wire service, energetic bookie joint operators are concentrating on finding some other way to beat the law.

Mansfield's Substantial Progress

WHILE Cleveland continues to struggle with a desperate relief situation, Toledo finds it necessary to close its public schools for the remainder of the year on account of shortage of funds, and Detroit is enmeshed in its ceaseless labor difficulties, the advantages of a smaller city are again evidenced by Mansfield's record of progress through October, as presented in the Chamber of Commerce monthly business review.

With industrial employment above the 10,000 mark, including almost capacity operation of the Empire Sheet & Tin Plate company, there was an associated increase in other forms of employment, resulting in a considerable decrease in unemployment compensation and direct relief requirements.

Gain in postal receipts and bus fares also serves as an index of improvement in local conditions, and the amazing increase in new car sales would have probably been even greater had not strike conditions in Detroit prevented filling orders in some lines.

While building operations now continue through the entire year, there is a natural drop-off in the fall and the year's total of new residential construction in Mansfield and suburbs will reflect substantial gains in home ownership during this period.

Approval of continuance of the 3-mill special levy at the recent election also assures maintenance of Mansfield's public school system at the high standards heretofore attained, with two fine new junior high school buildings soon to be in readiness for occupancy.

All in all, a check-up of Mansfield's present situation is quite satisfying—giving encouragement to enter 1940 with a feeling of determination to do a number of things that have thus far been left undone, and to make this an even better city in which to earn a living, own a home and rear a family.

Fifth Vacancy To Be Filled

THE DEATH of Associate Justice Pierce Butler, of the United States Supreme Court, will result in appointees of President Roosevelt constituting a majority of the court—an accomplishment he greatly desired when some of the court's decisions stood in the way of New Deal policies during the early stages of his second term.

By a strange quirk of fate, the first Roosevelt term offered no opportunities for Supreme Court appointments while the death of Justice Butler makes the fifth vacancy to be filled thus far in his second term—the four appointments already made by President Roosevelt being Hugo L. Black, Stanley F. Reed, Felix Frankfurter and William O. Douglas.

Of humble parentage, Justice Butler was one of the few prominent men of this modern age who could boast of having been born in a log cabin, and his rise to a position of unusual distinction was marked by the familiar struggle through boyhood hardships to attainment of an education which opened the way to the legal profession and eventually to the Supreme Court.

Interest now centers on who President Roosevelt's fifth appointee will be, with the west again clamoring for recognition and appointment of a woman being once more urged. The only assurance that can be felt is that the president's selection will be someone whose previous record has evidenced accord with Roosevelt policies.

Moving Toward Eventual Unity

A UNITED STATES OF EUROPE, which some people consider the only solution to Europe's troubles, has been discussed for at least twenty-five years with little practical effect. Moritz Bohn, an international economist and, after the World war, adviser to the German government on reparations, sees the development of such a union as neither an immediate prospect nor a vain hope. He thinks it will come, but only after much more preparatory work.

"Don't strive for world union now," he says. "Let's start, when the war is over, to build loosely-knit regional economic federations of nations."

It is his idea that certain European nations have obviously common interests and could complement each other's resources and supply each other's needs naturally and easily if they worked as a group.

Such groups seem already to be forming. The most successful so far is the Oslo conference, composed of Belgium, Luxembourg, Denmark, Finland, the Netherlands, Norway and Sweden. It was organized in 1931 "to restore international trade through mutual reduction of tariffs, quotas and other restrictions." Similarly the Balkan and Danubian groups have mutual interests and could co-operate.

Co-operation among such logical groups might well be promoted first, with a greater federation coming later, based on experience.

Posthumous Art Patron

HUMAN NATURE is curious. It is often hard to understand people and guess why they do what they do. There is the case of Mrs. Edith Perry Chapman, for instance, who died recently in a modest tourist home at Elmira, N. Y., leaving securities worth nearly half a million dollars to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, to buy bronzes.

Her relatives say they never knew she was interested in art. Apparently she could have surrounded herself with beautiful art works, but didn't. She has not been known for any previous philanthropy. Now she gives a large fortune to buy fine bronze statues for the public to enjoy, and merely requires that her name shall be inscribed on every statue purchased by the fund.

Thus the lonely old lady will live posthumously, as an art patron, and her benefaction will bring interest and pleasure to many people for generations.

Hitler's hair-do is described as "an exaggerated bang"—but not so much as the Munich beer hall explosion.

Woolen underwear is being provided for Japanese soldiers, but the Chinese still have their coolies.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If you know where to go you can see motion pictures of everything important and interesting that happens in this country. And it doesn't cost a cent. All this week I've been looking at play-by-play full-length pictures of important football games. I saw the SMU-Notre Dame thriller. I saw Alabama play Tennessee. I saw Ohio State lose to Cornell.

These are the coaches' textbooks. After each game the coaches put dunce-caps on the players' heads and make them look at the pictures. They sit there and watch themselves make incredible mistakes in the fundamentals of football, because of the errors, and the unusual plays, the long touchdown runs, where down-field blocking was good, or bad, are run in slow motion.

And all through these pictures the coach lectures, and moans. If he is Lou Little he weeps softly but continuously. If he is Ducky Pond he gathers emotional momentum and then explodes. But the pictures are wonderful. You can see more "football" in an official film than you can in three stadiums.

Of equal interest are full-length motion pictures, with sound, of duck hunts, and fishing trips. Yesterday I saw an afternoon's shooting in a duck blind off the North Carolina coast. You could see the men with the dogs in the blind. You could see little specks on the far horizon that became living ducks as they whistled in. You could hear the swish of their wings, and the bark of the guns. Sometimes ducks fell; more often they kept right on going. As one fellow described it, "I shot at some ducks, and they shot right back at me."

An incredible fund of these pictures, many in technicolor, have been made for devotees of all branches of sport. If you like to fish for swordfish, and nothing else, there is a swordfish picture. If you like to risk frost-bite by chasing polar bears across the ice floes in the Arctic, they have that too. There is salmon fishing in New Brunswick, and quail shooting in Alabama. There are muskalonge epics in Canada, and black bass orgies in Ontario.

I think they're wonderful, and I can't imagine anything better than having a library of these with a first class projection machine, wired for sound. Of course, that would cost a fortune. Only clubs and organizations have things like this.

But you can see these things—all of them, without cost—if you know where to go.

FRANK LUTHER, who likes to swing at golf balls when he isn't singing or writing songs, acquired an Irish setter last week and forthwith took it to a trainer, "for the usual course of instruction."

"Be more specific, Frank," the trainer suggested. "What do you want him trained for—pheasants or ducks."

"Neither," said Frank, "golf balls."

It was during the rehearsal of the Milton Berle "Stop Me If You've Heard This One" program last Saturday night, that Harry Hershfield, Jay C. Flippen and Berle were tossing the quips back and forth.

Finally, Milton let loose with one. Flippen immediately retorted, "That one comes from Abe Lincoln." To which Berle replied, "Listen, a guy named Raymond Massey is using his whole act this season, and doing great."

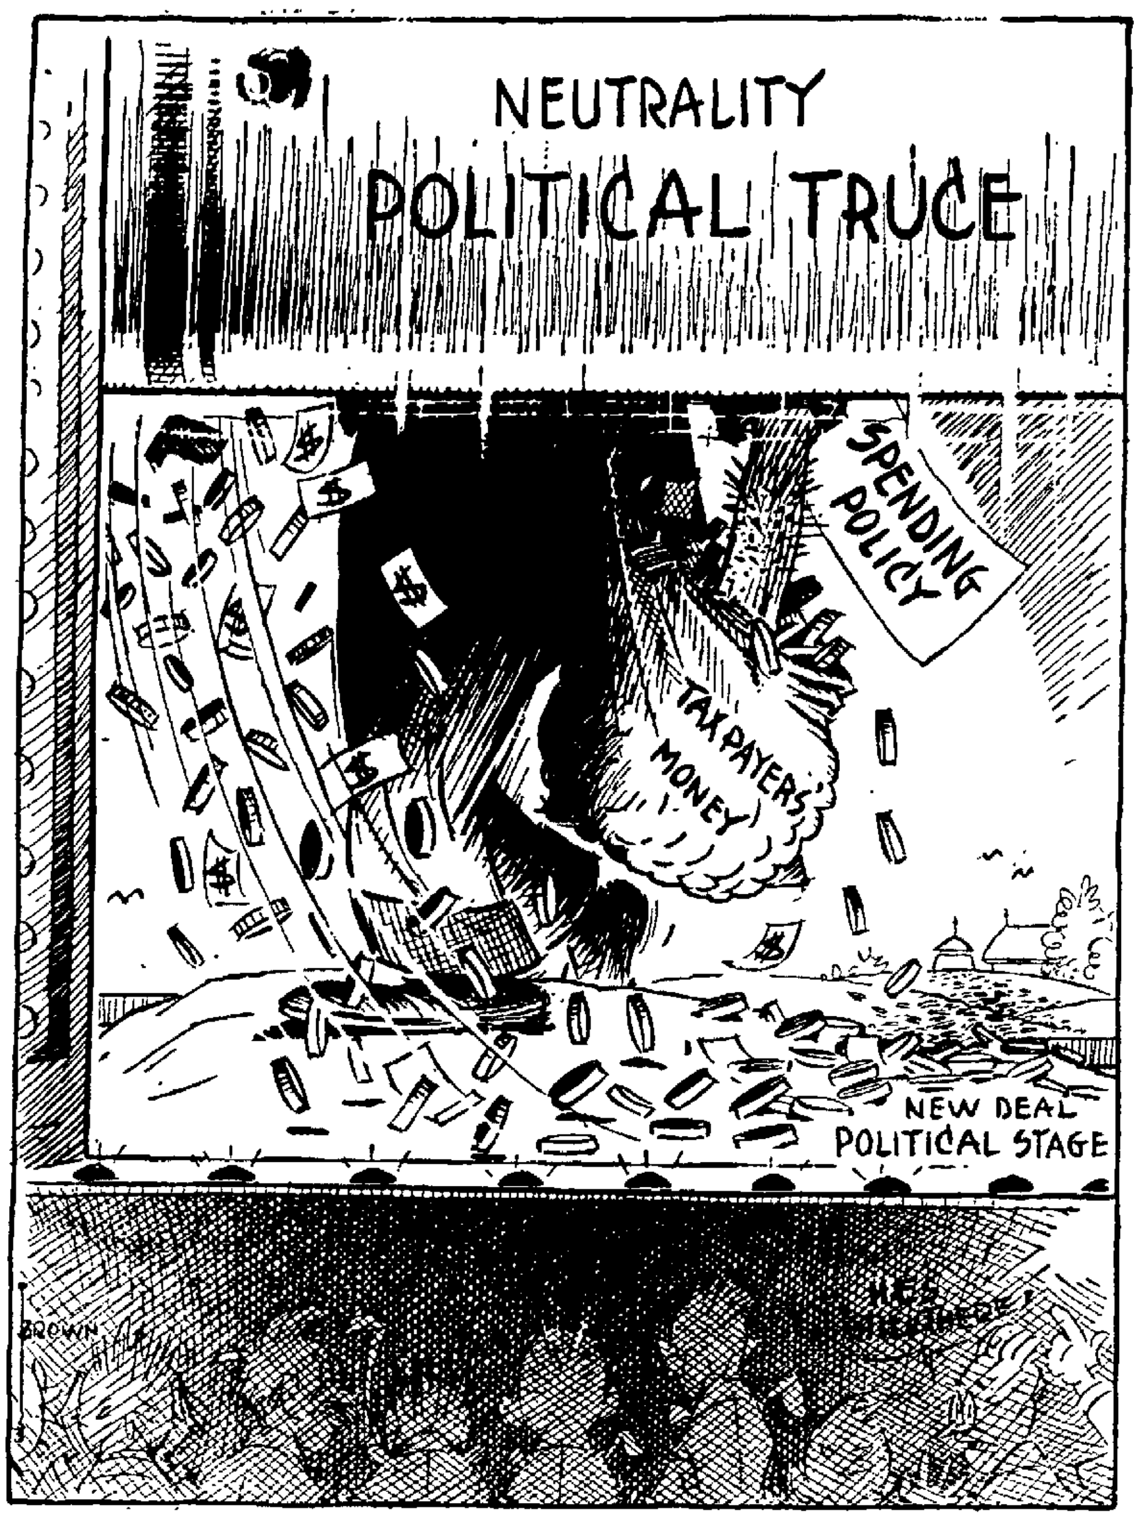
CURTAIN RISES ON THE SAME OLD ACT



Spending Vs. Budget Balancing

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—While it is extremely difficult to forecast what the effects of the European war will be on the presidential election campaign in the United States next summer, it has already insured a very important effect on the budget balancing situation. This is the situation, after all, which is and has been giving more concern to members of both parties than any other one thing, with the possible exception of the war itself.

There has not been any doubt, since the war broke out, that the United States would tremendously increase its expenditures for military purposes. Sharp increases in the army, navy and marine corps enlisted strength have already guaranteed that, with the reconditioning of more than 100 World war destroyers contributing its quota.

But that is just the beginning. There is going to be a tremendous boost in the appropriation this winter for airplanes, for training pilots, and maintenance of a larger air force. There will be, in all probability, further authorizations for more enlisted men and officers in the army, navy and marine corps, entirely aside from the increase in personnel in the air forces of all three arms of the service.

RUNNING into more spectacular figures, however, will be the new navy building program, and new defenses for Panama, Hawaii and certain points on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, not to mention Alaska.

There is very little opposition to all this. Sentiment for virtually every phase of the military program was obvious in the house and senate before the adjournment of the extra session. Polls taken since that time show overwhelming majorities of the people for all of them.

But consider for a moment just what this does to the hopes for balancing the budget! Not that there were really any such hopes—it has been a long time since any one seriously proposed a program which would keep government expenditures within the limits of government income.

Yet this spending-public-debt issue is the one on which most politicians privately agree the next administration will be wrecked. It is the reason so many senators and representatives say privately that the next president will be a one-termer.

Their theory is very simple, and applies to any Republican who might be elected just as well as to any Democrat. The next president must either go on with spending more than the government takes in or he must cut expenditures drastically. Every one agrees that taxes must and will be raised — probably after the election—but no one believes that taxes can be raised enough to balance the budget unless present spending is heavily curtailed.

SO THE next president will be faced with the problem of whether to cut, and infuriate the farmers, or the unemployed, or the government employes, or all three, or to go on spending, and scare the daylights out of the folks who are worrying about what will happen to this country if the federal debt goes on mounting.

This last may sound far-fetched and academic to some readers, but a brief confidential talk with any shrewd politician may surprise them. Just a few days ago Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., told newspapermen that the treasury would not issue checks after the federal debt had passed the present legal limit unless congress changed the present law limiting the debt.

Imagine the debate in the senate when that bill comes up! And the newspaper headlines and editorials about it!

Dare To Gamble On Your Own Decency!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

How Would You Like to Occupy This Space?

Ever since we first gave the readers of this column the opportunity to be a COLUMNIST FOR A DAY thousands of letters have come in asking for a repeat. Here's that chance you have been waiting for . . . the chance to make your views and ideas known all over America. What's your idea on marriage, ambition, career? What's wrong and what's right with the younger generation, the older generation—with anything? Sit down and write right now to Elsie Robinson, 235 East 45th St., New York, N. Y.

* * *

"Himself, his hungering neighbor, and me."

SURE'S the Harvest Moon rides high . . . and the season of Brotherly Love rolls 'round—I can count on a crop of them. Crop of what? Letters. Peevish letters. Wounded letters. Suspicious letters, embittered by past experience. All asking the same question—

"DOES IT PAY TO BE GENEROUS TO PEOPLE . . . DO THEY DESERVE THE KINDNESS AND CONSIDERATION THEY RECEIVE?"

There's only one answer to that question — the other fellow may not deserve your generosity, but you deserve it. He may be unworthy of your kindness, but you're worthy. And no matter how poorly he repays your good deeds, you'll be the richer in the end, for every one of them.

We make a big mistake about kindness, most of us. We think of it as a one way proposition. But it isn't. It's a two-way transaction, with the risk all on the Taker's side and an assured 75 per cent profit for the Giver.

"But how can I profit," you snort, "when I sign a note and some low-down trickster leaves me holding the bag? Or give away things I need myself, and find I've been taken for a ride?"

You WON'T profit — and you don't deserve to—if you expect cash returns or free publicity. But if you give for the sheer love of giving—if you spend yourself in honest sympathy and kindness—you're bound to double your investment regardless of how the Other Fellow acts.

Double it in what? In those things which are infinitely more valuable than bonds and stocks, dollars or real estate. In wisdom and friendliness . . . in breadth of vision and depth of tolerance . . . above all, in self-respect!

The most precious thing in all your life is self-respect. Without it, you are an outcast and a beggar, even though you can write your check in millions. With it, you can play hop-scotch with the stars! Even though you're eating dog biscuits. But self-respect doesn't just happen—and no one can bestow it upon you with medals or sweet kisses. You must achieve it for yourself by doing those things which you yourself can respect. Not show-off stunts . . . not glad-hand gestures. But gracious, secret acts which may never be known or appreciated but which fortify the fiber of your own soul.

Yes, I know the chap who receives your help may never appreciate it. He may repay your kindness with ingratitude, contempt and open mockery. But such returns are mud-on-your-heel! If you're wise you'll smile at them, as one would at mud—seeing the golden harvest you've risked and won, rather than the temporary nuisance.

Remember Bunyan's wise quip—

"A man there was—
"They called him mad;
"The more he gave
"The more he had!"

And those unforgettable lines from Longfellow's "Evangeline"—

"Talk not of wasted affection!
Affection never was wasted;
"If it enrich not the heart of another, its waters returning
"Back to their spring, like the rain, shall fill them full of refreshment."

DARE TO GIVE—for your own sake, even if the Getter prove worthless. DARE TO LOVE AND HAVE FAITH — for the simple beauty of the act itself, even though you never receive a grateful word in return. You'll gamble on horse flesh, and not grumble if you lose. THEN WHY SHRINK FROM GAMBLING ON YOUR OWN DECENCY — PARTICULARLY WHEN IT'S A SURE THING?

Timely Editorial

Why Not Frank It?

One wonders why the plan to mail some billions in gold from the New York and Philadelphia sub-treasuries in Fort Knox should wait on congressional authorization of the postage.

The postoffice department franks anywhere in the United States the printed ruminations of congressmen, cabinet secretaries and other government publicists. These are golden to them, even if dross to recipients. So why not frank the gold.

The answer doubtless would be Mr. Farley's solicitude for his precious postal surplus. Moving the gold consignment free would put a large dent in P. O. operating revenues. Moving at the usual rates, plus insurance, will be contrarily a nice piece of business for the department.

An annual surplus could be guaranteed by mailing the fleet, insured, from San Francisco to New York and back. Boulder Dam unhappily would be nonmailable.—Detroit News.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The admirals may not like it, but the navy is in for some rigorous overhauling at the next session of congress. Already Congressman Vinson of Georgia, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, has introduced a bill aimed to cut out the rivalry between the bureau of engineering and the bureau of construction and repair. It was the bungling of these bureaus which resulted in the top-heavy construction of the new destroyers.

Most people don't realize it, but the organization of the navy today is a fearful structure based upon the Naval Bill of 1842. One feature of this organization is a serio-comic division of responsibility for construction and design, which may be hard on the taxpayer, but serves as a perfect alibi for the admirals in case of defective ships.

Hate Research.

REAL scandal in the navy, however, is not the defective destroyers, but the ossified intellects of certain officers who are responsible for hamstringing any attempts at naval research.

During the 1938 session of congress, the house included in the naval appropriation bill $15,000,000 for experimentation and research, but when it got to the senate the admirals ruled it out. It is not often that any government department refuses a virtual gift of $15,000,000. But the admirals were quite firm about it.

"The navy sees no reason why there should be any authority incorporated in this bill for use of the money as provided in the house bill," they told the senate naval affairs committee.

Dislike Civilians.

THE only navy man who publicly opposed the admirals on this was Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, former commandant of the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J. Shortly after his testimony, Rosendahl was detailed to sea duty.

A vigorous plea for more naval research also came from Lester F. Barlow, developer of the high-powered aerial bomb, who said:

"Successful military technicians in civilian life have received such rotten treatment from naval bureaucrats in the past that they hesitate to offer their inventions for patriotic uses. The result is that naval military research is almost stultified."

But at the next session of congress legislation will be renewed providing more naval research — whether the admirals like it or not.

Note—The admirals did not say so, but one reason they opposed the 1938 naval research appropriation was because it was to be conducted under civilian direction, not by Annapolis graduates.

Hoover's Home.

HERBERT HOOVER'S S street home in Washington has been rented by the French war supplies mission, which seems to knock on the head the idea, once toyed with by the Hoovers, of coming back into the thick of politics in the capital.

The French mission will use the ground floor for offices, and reside upstairs. The house formerly was rented by Secretary of War Woodring, who was given a sudden eviction notice by the Hoovers.

When the Hoovers read in the newspapers that the Woodrings had been given such short notice, Mrs. Hoover wrote to Mrs. Woodring apologizing, and explaining that she had intended coming back to Washington to engage in Girl Scout work.

Political pundits, however, remembered Mr. Hoover's desire to vindicate himself, also his behind-the-scenes move to head European refugee work. With the re-renting of the Hoover house, however, the Hoovers apparently will not come back to Washington.

Note—The Hoover home is on the same street with Woodrow Wilson's, ex-Senator Reed's of Pennsylvania, ex-Under Secretary of State Castle's, and other ex's.

Air Monopoly.

NEW DEALERS won't admit it, but while one branch of their administration is tracking down monopolies in the justice department, another branch in the Civil Aeronautics Authority is fostering a monopoly of the most modern vehicle of transportation — transatlantic transportation.

The CAA hearings on a new transatlantic air route, requested by American Export Airlines, has developed into a farce. CAA attorneys have bogged the question down with technicalities and apparently tried to steer away from the main issue, namely whether Pan American Airways shall be given a monopoly of all air routes outside the U. S. A.

The CAA attorney, Sam Gates, even took the initiative in moving to set aside American Export's petition for an air route to Italy, on the ground that it had not received landing privileges there.

Real fact is that no company can receive landing privileges in foreign countries until the state department chooses to request them, which makes the state department and the government the absolute dictator of the monopoly.

Note — Originally founded on Mellon and Whitney money, Pan American Airways has played close to both Democratic and Republican administrations.

Merry-Go-Round.

SEVEN federal judgships — two on the customs court, two on appeals benches and three in district courts—are on the president's desk waiting to be filled. No appointments will be made, however, until congress reconvenes in January. . . . Also pending in congress is a bill to create five new judicial seats, which if passed before adjournment next June will enable Roosevelt to name the judges. . . . The president's proclamation shifting Thanksgiving from November 30 to the 23rd may have divided the country, but it has put embattled AFL's William Green and CIO's John L. Lewis in the same camp. Green, celebrating the day at his home in Coshocton, Ohio, and Lewis at his home in Alexandria, Va., will eat their turkey in keeping with the president's decree. . . . In Wisconsin, the state CIO council voted unanimously to ignore Governor Heil's turndown of the 23rd date and celebrate Thanksgiving on that day.

Witch Hazel Tree

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

DOWN in the rougher country south of where we live, I traveled through bramble thickets, across fences and up steep hillsides.

I saw an old gray squirrel stand upon his haunches, with a shellbark hickory nut in his forepaws, gnawing vigorously. The little crotch within which he sat gave me the chance to see him first. Watching through my glasses I saw how neatly he made a hole through the thick hard shell, and with what firmness and cunning he held his tasty food. His long dark gray bushy tail stretched above his shoulders.

"Early hunters have overlooked one splendid specimen," I thought. The wind blew from the east, and he did not scent me, for I was west of him. I stood there for quite a while, enjoying his companionship, and the enviable freedom of his woodland haunts.

I reversed my steps and followed down along the glen. In front of me, upon a little raise, two dogwoods stood. A small branch still bore tempting scarlet berries. All the rest had fallen from the tree and lay upon the ground, seared by the frost.

The damp still woods was very fragrant. The long-leafed ferns along the bank, the bare and twining roots of hazel bushes, the loose drifts of autumn leaves—all carried enticement for the nature lover. I did not care to travel fast.

Still farther south along this little hollow I saw, beyond the maze of sapling branches, a strange dark yellow color which seemed to be the top of a low-growing tree. As I approached, I noticed it was of that unusual race of smaller trees, the witch hazel. Here, in early November, were branches heavily loaded with yellow bloom. On the same twig I saw both blooms and twin capsules in which were borne the little seeds. I touched two browner than the others and the seeds dispersed like shot.

I stood beneath its slender branches and thought how well it deserved its name. The entire tree was blazing with a mystery that I could not fathom. A delusion would have been almost as real. It held me with a grasp so firm that I could never lose the memory of the scene.

NAZIS COLD TO U. S. MEDIATION

Offer From Roosevelt Would Be 'Uninteresting,' Berlin Statement Says.

French refusal to accept the Belgian-Netherlands mediation offer except on conditions cited in the replies, authorized sources said.

Warns Belgium on Aiding Sea Blockade.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—The Nazi press warned Belgium today against cooperating with the British blockade and announced that German warships were going to put an end to secret shipments of timber to Great Britain from certain Baltic states.

Voelkischer Beobachter, the Nazi organ, said Germany henceforth must convince herself that neutral cargoes were not destined for Britain and that "this goes primarily for timber cargoes which in recent weeks have, in a striking manner and in great quantities, been going from the Baltic to neutral countries where they have never gone before."

In the case of Belgium, Voelkischer Beobachter, of which Adolf Hitler once was editor, referred to a recent request made to Belgium by the British ambassador at Brussels, urging that the country help speed up Britain's contraband control.

"The British ambassador thus admits that Belgium's cooperation in British measures would include support of the British economic war against Germany," the newspaper said.

"Belgium will understand if under this interesting viewpoint, Germany follows with particular attention Belgium's attitude toward the British demands."

Claims Nazis Called Off Holland Invasion.

PARIS—(INS)—An assertion that German plans to invade Holland last week end were "mysteriously cancelled" came today from the lips of an American observer who has just arrived in Paris from Germany by way of a neutral country.

"The Germans," he said, "were all set to invade Holland last week end. There is absolutely no question of it. The plan was mysteriously and suddenly cancelled.

"I rode on a train from Berlin to Frankfort last Friday. That train, like all others, was indescribably jammed with troops hastily recalled from leave of absence.

"The train was supposed to be a through express, but it stopped at all towns along the route, picking up handfulls of troops.

"This continued long after the train was packed so full that the troops were stacked like cordwood in the compartments and aisles.

"The German troops were extremely cocky and full of talk about the coming attack against Holland.

"'This time,' they said, 'we will go for them and we'll get them properly.'

"At Frankfort the troops were routed to the north. I would have bet my life that the offensive would have been started by Sunday. I am sure that was the plan until it was cancelled mysteriously."

Swiss Guard German Border

would be laid on the street between North Main and North Mulberry streets.

Council's action last night culminates years of planning and negotiating with the state highway department for the improvement which is on U. S. route 30N.

It is the result of the state highway department's recent offer to repave the street if the city would pay 50 per cent of the cost.

An appropriation of $4,000 was approved by council last night for the construction of new sludge drying beds at the sewage disposal plant.

The appropriation which was made from a special PWA fund, left over from the erection of the plant three years ago, will finance the improvements that will add 40 per cent drying capacity at the plant.

With plans already approved by the state department of health, it is expected that work at the plant will be started shortly by employes of the street department under the direction of Plant Superintendent J. R. Turner and Superintendent of Streets D. D. Orewiler.

Another appropriation of $1,000 was authorized for the purchase of a new truck for the engineering department to replace an 11-year-old model now in use.

'SADIE'S' PARTY

Shelby Students Plan 'Hawkin's Day' Wednesday.

SHELBY—A "Sadie Hawkin's" party, named after a character in the News-Journal comic strip, will be held by the students of Shelby high school at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the school auditorium.

The party will feature an old-fashioned box social with the girls bringing a box lunch for two. At the party a queen will be chosen from the girls of the senior class by popular vote and the title of "Daisy May," another character in the comic strip, will be given her. The boy who purchases her box will be the "king" of the party and will go by the name of "Little Abner." A prize will also be given the girl with the best decorated box.

The party is being sponsored by the National Forensic league of the school to raise funds for its activities. Ohio Farm Leader Tells County Bureau Schemes Caused by Jobless, Farm Problems.

our unsolved economic problems by emphasizing war talk and the threat of war.

"Shakespeare said in one of his plays that it was the trick of rulers to divert attention from uncomfortable circumstances at home, and now we have the same thing being repeated," Lincoln asserted. "The present European war is going to figure prominently in the presidential campaign next year."

One of the major reasons for low farm income and surpluses is the growing tendency for nations to become self-sustaining, he said. The fact that other countries can get along without importing farm products leaves the American farmer with a limited market for his goods, he pointed out.

Adopts Resolutions.

In resolutions adopted at last night's meeting, the farm bureau recommended: 1. Higher sales tax on non-essentials and luxuries and reduction of the tax on essentials; 2. Repeal of the Fair Trade laws, labeled as "price-fixing" laws by the group; 3. Granting general police powers to the state highway patrol; 4. Enactment of a state personal net income tax; 5. Granting township trustees more authority in handling relief; 6. Continued development of the ever-normal granary set up by the federal government, and 7. Amending of the cooperative laws to permit the sale of household supplies and to permit, at the discretion of individual cooperatives, a minority number of non-farmer members.

The county Farm Bureau opposed attempts to repeal the 65 per cent requirement for bond issues payable from levies on real estate and "any lessening of the influence of rural representation through a one-house legislature, or other means."

Re-Elects Smith.

The county organization re-elected R. L. Smith of Springfield township as chairman and renamed all the other officers. They are Neil S. Robinson, Franklin township, vice president; Mary Gramly of Weller township, secretary; Mrs. Clarence Griebling of Lexington and Mrs. George Barnes of Jackson township, directors.

With the largest membership of any county Farm Bureau in Ohio, the organization chose four delegates to the state convention Nov. 29 and 30 in Columbus, more than any other county. Delegates are Smith, Miss Gramly, Mrs. Griebling and Mrs. Barnes.

The attendance banner was awarded to the Weller township organization which topped other units in the number of members present at the county meetings in comparison with total membership and mileage traveled.

R. R. Howard, secretary of the county Farm Bureau Co-operative, reported that cash business for the first 10 months of this year amounted to $510,000, a marked increase over the same period of 1938.

Music was provided by the Butler township quartet. R. R. Howard led group singing. More than 250 farmers attended the meeting.

come was $9,245, two-thirds of which came from the Community Fund, and the cost of operating the agency was $9,550.

The annual report of the Boy Scouts shows that organization's income to be $7,061 and its operating expenses $7,345, leaving it $284 in the red.

The Friendly House, which receives more money from the Fund than any other agency, had a deficit of $13 when its books were audited. It receives $6,490 from the fund and $1,880 from other sources, making a total of $8,370. Expenditures for the year, including salaries, supplies, heat and light, repairs to the old Settlement house building on North Main street, Christmas and camp activities and miscellaneous bills, amounted to $8,383.

The deficit in operating the Salvation Army was $202 after $7,236 had been spent during the year. One of the largest items was $1,342 for meals and relief. The army receives $4,723 from the fund and $2,311 from other sources.

The Y. W. C. A. spent $40 more than its income which totalled $7,702.

The Milk fund, which provided 71,017 bottles of milk for undernourished school children, balanced its books, spending the $1,953 allocated it by the Community Fund. The sum of $178 given to the Memorial Day committee is used for expenses incurred in the city's observance of the day.

The administration cost of the Community Fund was $3,618. This figure includes the salaries of the secretary and an office clerk, office supplies, rent, telephone and telegraph charges on investigations and all other incidental expenses. The annual campaign last year cost $1,453.

CHAPTER XXVIII

But where she would go or what she could do to support herself, if no other secretarial jobs were available, she had no idea. She had only a small part of her salary laid aside, and that would not last indefinitely. Besides, having to leave Palm Springs now, when perhaps she could maneuver to spend minutes or even whole hours with Tom and help him when she thought he desperately needed her, was too much to take.

She knew there would be nothing gained by pleading with Selia. Things between them could never be the same again. There was of course Delores who might be induced to support her only child. But Rita would never suggest this. She never wanted to be dependent on Delores, subjected to her inconsistencies and the foolish glitter and adulation which must constantly surround her.

She would slip quietly away without letting any one know her destination, which now, in her muddled state of mind, seemed to lead straight down a steep rocky mountain into a dense black forest of hopelessness.

* * *

Selia sent Rita back to Palm Springs in the limousine with Preston, staying in Los Angeles, as Rita guessed, to set about trying to break up her son's hasty marriage. Rita stopped long enough at the Brewsters' town house to throw her belongings into trunks and have them ready to be sent to a new address when she had one. Then she and Preston started to ride through the bright sunshine which glittered joyously on the pavement now, and gayly painted the mountainside flowers with unsurpassed glory. All nature was acclaiming spring in sweet fragrance, vivid color and shiny fresh foliage. It was the season for romance, for the uttering of trembling troth in the soft balmy air. Rita sensed this with a pain in her heart, a fear, when she thought of Tom, that would not be stilled.

Upon reaching the hotel in Palm Springs she paused briefly at the desk to get her key, and reached her suite without seeing any one she knew.

She breathed a sigh of relief and locked herself in her sitting-room. Then she set about telephoning the one person in the world it would be comforting to see. Dear, kind Minnie! She and her husband, John Hobbs, had settled on a small citrus ranch in San Fernando Valley and if it were humanly possible Rita knew the old family butler and housekeeper would make a place for her in their home.

The telephone conversation resulted as Rita had thought it would. Minnie was highly honored to think that Rita wished to visit their modest little house, and it was arranged that Rita would arrive the following day, bag and baggage.

This gave Rita ample time to pack, and leave Selia's desk in perfect order. She wrote Selia a note explaining where to find this and that, and reminded her of various engagements with hairdresser, dentist and masseur, making it altogether businesslike and simply signing her initials. She put the note conspicuously under a brass paperweight on the desk where Selia could not fail to notice it.

She had had her meals sent up and did not leave her rooms until the following morning, when she left them, she hoped, forever. She congratulated herself upon making her escape without running into people she wished to avoid.

Minnie and Hobbs lived in a pretty, ivy-covered bungalow containing a dainty spare bedroom papered with bluebirds and yellow acacia. The furniture was covered with yellow chintz and the windows overlooked a colorful orange grove and Minnie's attractive cacti garden beside a lily pool.

It was restful and cheerful and at first Rita was filled with a peaceful assurance she had not known in years. Minnie was reluctant to accept substantial advance board and room payment that Rita offered but finally Rita convinced her that she could not remain and be happy unless she contributed her share of the expenses.

So Rita thankfully settled down to a simple living. Minnie served the most delicious meals she could cook, and Hobbs, although ill at ease in his role of host, joined Minnie in trying to make that pitiful haunted expression leave Rita's big blue eyes.

But before many more days had passed, Rita's old restless spirit returned. She remembered that it was necessary for her to earn a living. At this rate, her savings would soon be gone and she'd become a burden to Minnie and Hobbs.

Fortunately, Rita applied for a position in a large Hollywood department store on a day when the lure of a basement sale exceeded all expectations, and the store was unexpectedly short of clerks. Rita was quickly snatched up as a find by Sam McGill, manager of the basement millinery section, and placed behind a counter after being asked a few hasty questions. He did not even waste time by calling Mrs. Minnie Hobbs for a character reference.

Rita had said frankly that she had no selling experience. But Sam prided himself upon knowing an honest face when he saw one. Especially when that face had dreamy blue eyes, a cute little nose, and pretty quivering lips. He wasn't taking the chance of losing such decoration for one of his counters. He also liked that neat black suit, and she was a perfect blond—he was just past thirty and partial to blonds.

The maelstrom of varicolored cheap straw hats now being pawed over by bargain-hunting women, the wild-eyed anxiety of thirty or forty of them to squeeze and shove in front of two small mirrors, was amazing to Rita. She never had shopped in a bargain basement, and its workings were a revelation to her. She hadn't known before that a woman would fight to acquire one hideously unbecoming hat that would be an affront to every piece of wearing apparel she owned. She tried to persuade several of them to select a shape enhancing their features, but invariably they haughtily disregarded advice and bought the hat the nearest shopper was admiring and had nearly decided to own.

By night, Rita was aching too cruelly in every muscle to care much about anything. She reached the little bungalow out in the valley nearly glad this was so. At least, she was too tired to fret over Tom Cleveland, Eva, over engagements, murders, and a mother who admired a Harry Handy.

Minnie and Hobbs, however, were plainly disturbed by Rita's determination to "wear herself out," as they expressed it. But they secretly applauded her battle for financial independence. If they thought it strange that Countess Delafield was doing nothing about all this, they kept it to themselves, resolving through their affection for Rita to ease somewhat her present predicament.

So Rita daily rode a bus back and forth from the valley to Hollywood, learning what standing long hours on her feet meant, reaching her destination at night too exhausted to want food. The other basement salesgirls immediately made her one of them, and she learned after a few weeks that it was best not to take a job too seriously; that your feet didn't swell or burn too much if you stopped worrying about them; that pleasant incidents often lightened the harassed floor manager's sharp orders and the customers' unreasonableness.

One noon Rita went alone to a nearby drug store for a lunch. The day had been hot and sultry, and she wondered how she was going to last out the remaining working hours in that stuffy basement without benefit of the air conditioning that cooled the store's upper floors.

She purchased a newspaper, propped it up beside her limeade. She bit into a ham sandwich, indifferently reading headlines. War, intrigue, persecution. The world full of hate and greed and frustration. No sense to any of it.

She laid down the sandwich and impatiently turned to the society page. Selia was in town, working on her favorite charity. She read about former old friends who were breezing around as usual in a cloud of lovely illusion—lovely enough to make many a tired working girl envious. If she acknowledged the truth, she too . . . But she mustn't give way to a lot of maudlin sentiment.

Abruptly she ejaculated, "Oh!" her eyes riveted on a black-headlined paragraph.

"Countess Delafield ill," she read quickly.

Highly disturbed, she skimmed through the meager account of her mother's indisposition, vaguely described as serious.

Now, she knew what she must do. Even though Dolores had many disagreeable qualities, had done many unfair things, she was still her mother, and she must go to her immediately.

She rushed back to the store and breathlessly asked Sam McGill for a day's leave of absence. He was surprisingly considerate, even seeing that her week's pay check was given her, and offering to drive her to the train. But under no circumstances would she put herself under obligation to him, especially from now on, because lately he had been persistently showing his preference for her over all other girls in his department. So she declined his kindness politely but firmly.

She caught the two o'clock bus back to the Hobbs ranch, and quickly threw a few clothes into a bag, consumed with worry. She blamed herself for her sins of omission and, unjustly, for those of commission. She blamed herself for ever being angry at Dolores—beautiful magnetic Dolores whose vanity was only a habit for which she could not be blamed.

Oh, why hadn't she insisted upon staying near her, taking care of her? And now—maybe Dolores would die! It would be her selfish daughter's fault! This daughter who had tried to run away from herself, and couldn't—this daughter who had been too cowardly to face things and take what came!

Oh, if only she weren't too late!

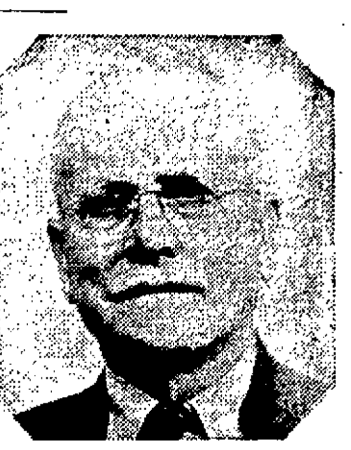
Ohio R. R. Man Gives Vendol Full Credit for Relief

Says he took celebrated medicine after hearing so much praise given it. Relieved aching pains in arms, back, and limbs due to constipation.

"Hearing so much praise for Vendol, I decided to try it and now I know from my own experience that it is truly a wonderful medicine," said Mr. Charles A. Hooper of 572 Sheldon Ave., Columbus, Ohio, who was a railroad man over 37 years and now retired.

"I suffered daily from constipation and this caused dreadful suffering from nervous indigestion and gassy bloating so that I would avoid many things to eat that I knew would upset me. Even then I often became sick to my stomach, had dull headaches, and many days this constipation also made me feel bilious and dizzy and at times I had awful pains in my arms, legs, and back so that when I bent over it hurt terribly to straighten up.

"Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets gave complete, thorough relief from constipation and now I eat heartily and have no fear of all the suffering I used to endure. Vendol has transformed me into feeling like a new person. This relief from constipation brought relief from the gas, sour stomach, belching, dull headaches, dizzy feelings, and there is never an ache or pain any more. Vendol gets full credit for all this wonderful relief."



MR. CHARLES A. HOOPER

The fame of this Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine rests upon actual results, and thousands of grateful men and women all over this and other states, after giving it a chance to help them, make public statements telling of their relief. According to their own testimony Vendol has relieved long suffering from acid indigestion, gas, cramps, bloating, shortness of breath, nervousness, poor sleep, aches and pains if these troubles are due to constipation or need of a diuretic to the kidneys. If Vendol helped them it should do the same for you.

Give Vendol a chance to help you too. The Vendol Man is daily at Central Drug Store, Main and 4th Sts., to explain all about it. So, come see him today if possible. Vendol is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

THEATERS

THIS and That: The current Hollywood flair for titles that are complete sentences seems to have been carried a bit too far in the eight-word title of "Joe And Ethel Turp Call On The President." Imagine that on the marquee of a theater! Ann Sothern and William Gargan will play Ethel and Joe. . . . Remember "Waterloo Bridge?" when Mae Clarke played the tragic little English tart? The story will be remade with Vivian Leigh. . . . Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart will be co-starred in "The Shop Around The Corner." They were together in "Next Time We Love" several years ago. . . . Such well-known biggies as Alexander Hamilton, Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr will come to life on the screen when Dorothy Thompson's original story, "The Dawn's Early Light" is filmed. . . .

Dynamic Woman.

One of the most dynamic feminine figures in the world's history is portrayed by Bette Davis in "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" which opens a four-day engagement at the Ohio tomorrow. Miss Davis will be seen as the queen whose brains and diplomatic ability guided Britain into its greatest prestige as a world power, but whose heart betrayed her into loving a man half her age. Essex is played by Errol Flynn, the youthful soldier who lost his head rather than humble his pride for a queen. Olivia DeHavilland plays beautiful Lady Gray who loves the queen's knight. A chess game between these two women is one of the dramatic highlights of the film.

Deanna At Madison.

No well trained movie heroes for Deanna Durbin in her first love-story picture. In "First Love" her two leading men are strictly newcomers to the screen. Robert Stack is a son of a Los Angeles society family and Lewis Howard is a Columbia university student who has taken part in school dramatics. Stack has played in a half dozen Little Theater shows in Los Angeles, but neither have ever had a screen role. Leatrice Joy, one time first rank star of movies and the first wife of the late John Gilbert, plays a role in the picture as the astrology-mad aunt. The Durbin musical numbers will include Puccini's "One Fine Day"; "Amapola," by Lacalle, and "Spring In My Heart," a medley of Strauss waltzes. The film will be shown at the Madison, starting tomorrow.

Ohio Cowboy.

Roy Rogers, the blond cowboy from the plains of Ohio, turns to the post-Civil war era for his current movie drama, "Southward Ho," opening today at the Ritz. Rogers and a pal, Gabby Hayes, find themselves out of employment at the close of the war after having been in the Confederate ranks. Gabby remembers that he owns a half interest in a Texas ranch and they set out for it, which launches them on a series of exciting adventures. Mary Hart is the girl. The second film is "They All Come Out."

Cattlemen's Battle.

"Racketeers of the Range" is a title that tells its own story. Cattlemen are in a position to be sold out to the big meat combine when George O'Brien, one of the cattlemen, decides to throw one of the packing companies into bankruptcy, have himself appointed receiver and thus retain at least one fair market for their livestock. The other attraction at the Park which runs through Saturday is "I Cover the Waterfront," a revival of an old film with Claudette Colbert and Ben Lyon.

The Real McCoy.

Col. Tim McCoy, former adjutant-general of Wyoming and more recently cowboy star of Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers circus, is back on the screen as the hero of "Lightning Carson Rides Again," a Majestic attraction. He plays a member of the department of justice who moves in and out of the action disguised as a Mexican badman. "The Kid From Kokomo," a comedy with Wayne Morris, Joan Blondell and Pat O'Brien, is top feature on the bill.

1,500-LB. BEAR BIGGEST QUARRY

Hide of Alaskan Game 11 Feet Square; Big Bull Moose Also Sets Record.

(By Associated Press)

JUNEAU, Alaska—Compilation of professional guides' reports show the largest brown bear killed the past season was a 1,500-pounder brought down by D. S. Hopkins, Spokane, Wash., hunting near Uyak Bay May 10

The hide measured 11 feet long, 11 feet 8 inches wide, and the skull, weighing 20 pounds, was 19¼ inches long and a foot across.

Samuel H. Hostetter, Hutchinson, Kas., hunting on Admiralty Island, brought down the season's biggest grizzly. Its hide was 9 feet 4 inches each dimension and its skull was 18¼ by 8½ inches.

Henry A. Roemer, Pittsburgh, Pa., shot the largest southeastern Alaska black bear of the year. It measured 7 feet 3½ inches square and had a skull 13½ by 8½ inches.

W. Osborn, hunting for the American Museum of Natural History, New York City, took out the largest bull moose of the year. It was shot in the Kenai Peninsula, and had an antler spread of 63 inches, a palm breadth of 14 inches and had 34 points. Guide Tom Odale found a moose, killed by another, near Tustumena Lake, which had an all-time Alaska record spread of 78 inches.

ASK $75,000 IN 2 DAMAGE SUITS

Mansfielder Burned by Power Line, Youth Hit by Truck Are Plaintiffs.

Two damage suits for a total of $75,000, both involving accidents in northern Richland county, had been filed today in common pleas court.

The larger of the two suits was filed by John M. Grubaugh, Mansfield, who seeks $50,000 from the Ohio Public Service company for burns he received July 2, 1935 when he touched a high tension line while moving a house in the village of Rome.

A similar action filed by Grubaugh several months ago was dismissed last Sept. 28 in common pleas court when Grubaugh failed to appear.

Represented by Attys. Lewis Brucker and H. M. Rust, Mansfield, Grubaugh contends that the power company was negligent in stringing bare wires across the street and that the power line was erected over the street in Rome without permission.

An action for $25,000 was filed against the Michigan Motor Freight Lines, Inc., of Detroit by Ocie Fraley, a minor, of near Shelby, who asks damages for injuries he suffered in a truck-automobile crash near Shelby.

The accident occurred last June 7 at the intersection of routes 13 and 96 east of Shelby. Young Fraley, driver of the car, received a skull fracture and other lesser injuries.

He filed the action through his father, P. T. Fraley, Attys. J. V. Will of Mansfield and Theodore Lutz of Shelby represent him.

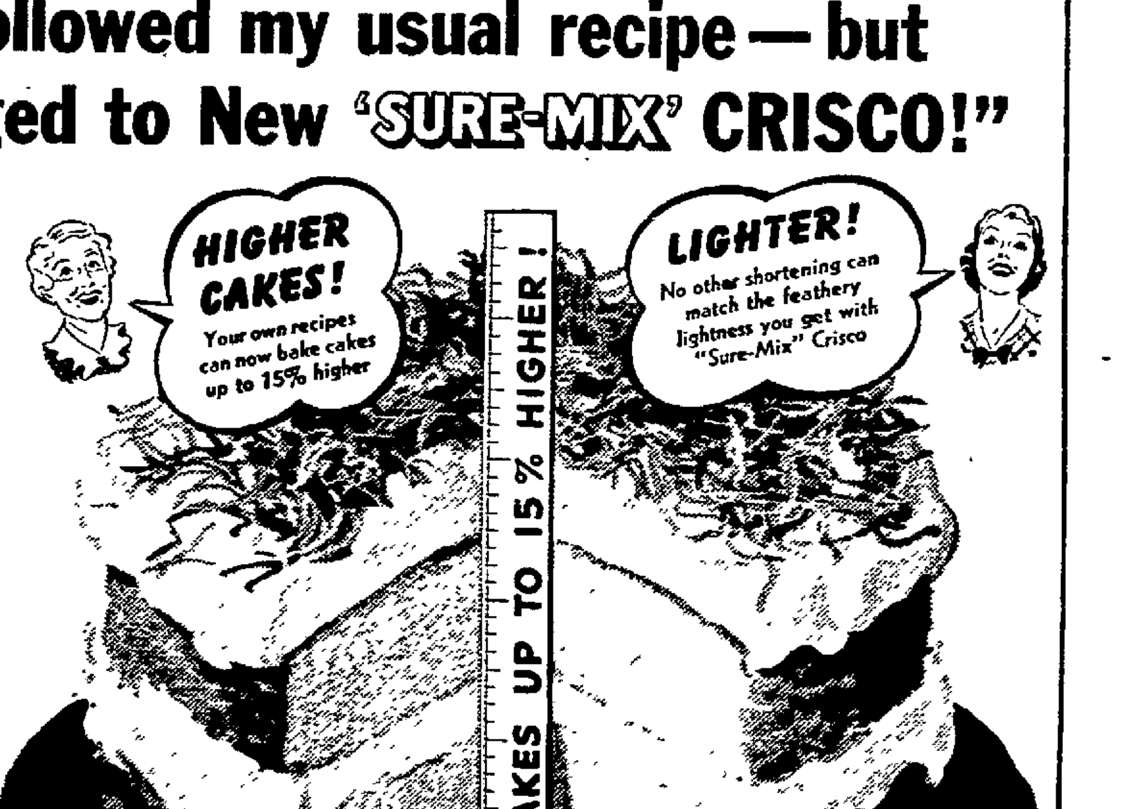
CAKES HIGHER—LIGHTER—TENDERER! Your usual cake recipes will give you the surprise of your life. Out of the oven will come higher cakes than ever before (up to 15% higher depending on the kind of cake). Lighter—feather-light! Tenderer—and grander-eating!

Prove it yourself. Stir up a cake with New "Sure-Mix" Crisco this very day!



HIGHER CAKES! Your own recipes can now bake cakes up to 15% higher

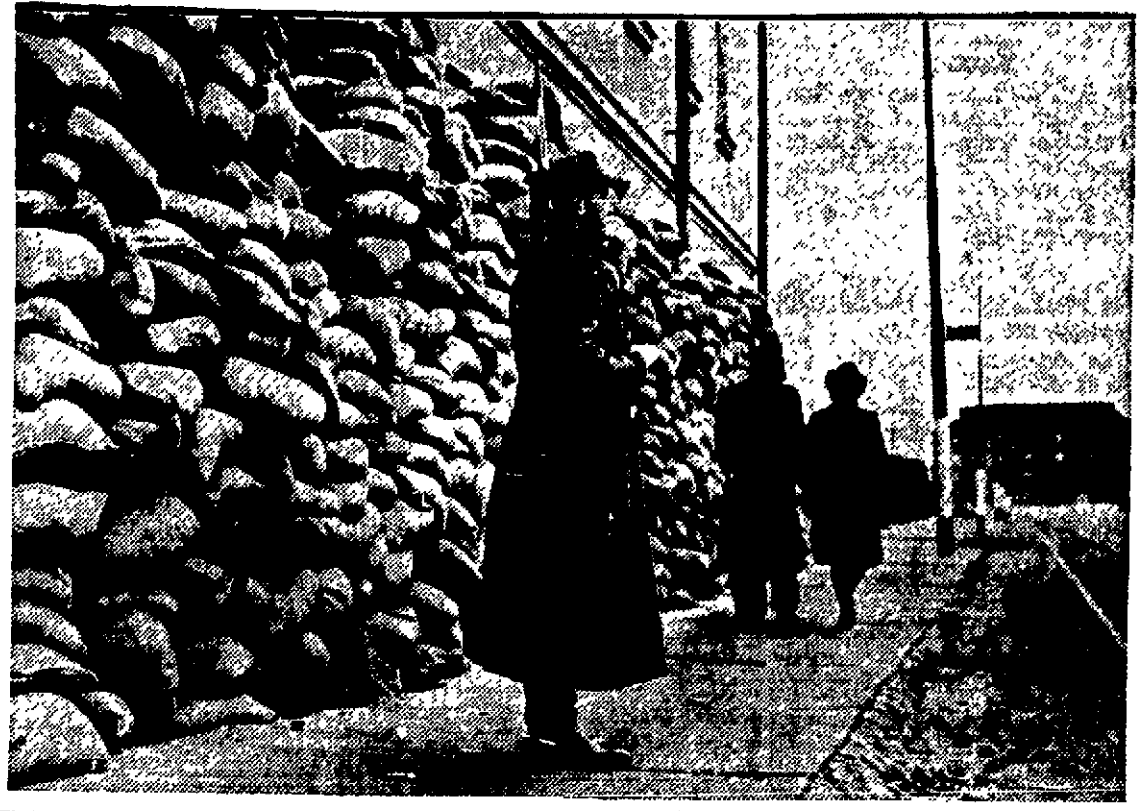
There's Reason For This Street Being Deserted



There a reason for the deserted appearance of this street in Viipuri, Finland. The thriving Finnish seaport is within 30 miles of the Soviet border and more than 50,000 persons have been evacuated from it since the Soviet-French crisis became acute. Note how the buildings are sandbagged. This is an exclusive picture by Frank Muto.

Deaths from work accidents on farms numbered 4,300 in 1938, the greatest total for any single industry.

Roll ½ of dough and line a 9-inch pie plate. Roll remaining half of dough and cut in narrow strips about ⅜-inch wide.

Fill pie shell with fruit mixture. Place pastry strips on top, crisscrossing them to make an attractive lattice top. Moisten edge of pie, place strip of dough around rim and press together with fork. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 50 to 60 minutes. See if you ever tasted such flaky, tender pastry as you can make this easy Spry way.

SPRY PIE CRUST

2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup Spry
5 tablespoons water

Sift flour and salt together. Add ⅓ of Spry and cut in until mixture is as fine as meal. So quick and easy with triple-creamed Spry. Add remaining Spry and continue cutting until particles are size of navy bean. Sprinkle all the water over top of mixture. With a fork, stir water into mixture to form a dough.

Freed Capone Stays In Guarded Maryland Hospital

POLICE FEAR REPRISALS BY ENEMY GANGS

'Scarface' in $30-a-Day Suite, Waits Malaria Treatment to Cure Disease.

(By International News Service)

BALTIMORE — Al (Scarface) Capone spent his first night outside of prison walls in seven and a half years in a $30-a-day suite at the Union Memorial hospital—still under guard!

Police Commissioner Robert Stanton stationed uniformed and plainclothes officers around the hospital to prevent, Stanton said, possible gangster reprisals against Chicago's erstwhile gang overlord.

"Capone's presence requires that some precautionary measures be taken," Stanton said.

Capone was eager today to take the malaria treatment—the injection of malaria germs into his blood stream—in the hope that this disease might cure or correct paresis, a malady of the brain, from which he is suffering.

Released from the Lewisburg (Pa.) federal prison yesterday morning after serving seven years and six months of a 11-years sentence for income tax law violations, Capone was taken to the hospital by his mother, wife and brother. Federal agents accompanied him to Baltimore's city limits.

Lost 60 Pounds.

The "big fellow," the nickname by which he is still known despite his loss of 60 pounds while in Alcatraz prison on the island outside of San Francisco, was smiling when he arrived at the hospital. He attempted to register under another name but general superintendent Clyde Frost insisted that he give his right name.

In Washington Attorney General Murphy said Capone will be in the hospital two or three weeks and then accompany his family to his $100,000 villa on Palm Island, near Miami Beach, Fla.

While department of justice officials announced that Capone had promised to "go straight" and not renew contacts with his old cronies, Murphy hinted that the department had received information indicating that some of his old friends intend to plan to see him when he arrives at his Florida home.

Lays Ouster To 'Friendship' With Ex-Highway Boss

ASHLAND — Suspended yesterday as a state highway employe in Ashland county, Leland Reed of Albion, charged today he was dismissed by the county highway superintendent because he was "too friendly" with George Buchanan, former superintendent, ousted several months ago.

Reed was suspended orally for 30 days by Harry Moherman, Ashland county superintendent, after he had worked one day following a re-instatement. Reed's job as roller operator was abolished Nov. 4, but he was re-instated Nov. 15.

He charged Moherman dismissed him after questioning him concerning his association with Buchanan, the former superintendent. He quoted Moherman as saying "you can't work for two bosses" and also claimed Moherman said Reed was "not working for him politically."

Murray D. Shaffer, Ashland division state highway engineer, today described the dismissal as a "personal matter between Reed and Moherman." He said Reed had not been officially suspended and any dismissal order would "have to come from the state highway director."

Reed said he planned to report for work daily until formal notice of the suspension is served on him. After that, he will file an appeal with the State Civil Service commission, he said. Reed has been with the highway department for about two years and was placed under civil service Oct. 1, 1938.

Up and Down THE STREET

Orville Kibler is still without his first fox but it wasn't his fault that he failed to get one this week. Hunting near his Ontario home, Kibler spied a big red fox, fired but missed. As he shouldered his gun for the second shot, his companion yelled for him to stop. He warned Kibler that the fox season hadn't opened. That evening Kibler learned that the fox season opened with the regular hunting season. Incidentally, huntsmen say that fox are plentiful in the county this year, but Kibler, apparently, was one of few nimrods to get a shot at one.

Mrs. J. C. Wilson, 35 Blymyer avenue, was in New York City today and friends are betting that she's extremely excited and a little nervous. Because tonight is the opening of the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein musical show, "Very Warm For May," and Jack Wilson, her son, is one of a featured quartet of singers. The quartet left the Fred Waring Glee club to try stage work and of course they are "on edge" until they know the fate of the new show. Mrs. Wilson will spend about two weeks with Jack and her daughter, Jane, who sings on the Fred Waring radio program.

Two broken legs seems almost too much for one family at one time, and it has turned the second floor of the Knofflock home, 347 Springmill street, into a hospital, with fracture beds and casts. Three weeks ago Mrs. George Knofflock fell and broke her leg and at that time her daughter, Mrs. Arthur W. Zerby, came home to care for her. Tuesday evening Arthur Zerby, jr., was brought to the home with a fractured leg received playing football.

The man who wasn't at the theater the other night to claim the $450 when his name was drawn in bank night, is disturbed over the publicity given him in this column this week. It disturbed him because, first, it isn't true that he attends bank nights; second, his wife wasn't in a huff and didn't coax him to go; third, she didn't come home and say "I told you so!" (marvelous woman); and fourth, he probably feels pretty darned unlucky because he didn't accompany his wife and so lost the $450, and who wouldn't?

G. M. TO APPEAL ANTI-TRUST SUIT

Corporation, Three Affiliates Convicted But Officials Win Acquittal.

BULLETIN

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(AP)—Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley imposed fines of $5,000 each today on General Motors corporation and three affiliates convicted last night by a jury of violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

(By United Press)

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Defense attorneys were expected today to appeal conviction of the General Motors corporation and three affiliates on charges of having conspired to violate the anti-trust laws. They said they were unable to understand why the companies were convicted while 17 co-defendants, all officials of the firms, were acquitted.

A federal court jury returned the verdict last night, marking another victory for the department of justices in its anti-monopoly offensive.

The individuals acquitted included Alfred P. Sloan, GMC board chairman, and William S. Knudsen, GMC president, two of the country's leading industrialists.

The government had charged that GMC, the individuals and the General Motors Sales corporation, the General Motors Acceptance corporation and the General Motors Acceptance corporation of Indiana conspired to restrain interstate commerce, in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act, by forcing retail dealers to use the GMC affiliates in financing automobile sales. Dealer witnesses had testified they were ordered to finance through GMAC under penalty of losing their franchises. Corporation officals, including Sloan and Knudsen, had denied such orders had been given.

COOGAN FINDS 'GLORIOUS PAST' HANDICAP AS HE STARTS ANEW

By JANE WILLIAMS

The worst handicap that a young man could possibly have is a past as a famous child star. Ask Jackie Coogan, the famous "Kid" who amassed a fortune of something like $4,000,000 before he was in his 'teens, and who now is trying desperately hard to start his life all over again.

Perhaps that was why young Coogan gives so much to his role of young Henry Aldrich in "What A Life" which played to little more than a handful of people last night at the Madison theater.

Despite the fact that the company had performed before a packed house Wednesday at Canton, and that last night's audience of possibly 200 persons seemed unusually small in comparison, the entire company gave it's best. All top-ranking players, they proved they were good troupers too, by putting 100 per cent enthusiasm into their work.

Incidentally, "What A Life" which was one of the most entertaining comedies that Mansfield has had in many years, probably will be this town's last legitimate theater production, for the management figuratively "lost its shirt" on the venture.

There will be no more plays brought to Mansfield, according to Cleveland officials of Warner Brothers, lessors of the theater, unless they come under the new season block, a system similar to that used by the Civic Music associations.

Young Coogan, star of the show, admits that his past fame is a tremendous handicap. No child star, other than Shirley Temple, has had the place in the movie heavens that was Coogan's. He came into fame as The Kid in a Charlie Chaplin picture, later made a film entitled "The Kid" and as he grew older played such roles as "Tom Sawyer" and other boyhood stories.

But like most child stars he was through when he outgrew his "cute" age. His bad luck began with the death of his father in an auto accident. And now, at little more than 21, the boy is starting all over again, estranged from his mother under whose administration his fortune disappeared and divorced from a wife who "disappeared" shortly after the fortune.

"I'm not cute any more," he said seriously last night. "No matter how good a job I do in pictures or on the stage, it doesn't come up to what people expect of me. I'm not starting out with an even break, if you know what I mean. I'm handicapped by my past. I'd have a lot better chance if I hadn't been played up so big when I was a kid.

"And that's true of every kid star," he continued. "Can you think of a single adult star in pictures today who was tops as a kid? Some of them have tried, but only Madge Evans ever got anywhere."

Coogan, a blond, is much more attractive on the stage than he is on the screen, and has personal appeal as well as ability as an actor.

Last night's show kept the audience in stitches from beginning to end. It was unfortunate that the theater wasn't filled with teachers and parents for it was a sermon—hilariously told—against trying to cram a boy into a mold which doesn't fit him. The play structure is based on the popular radio program of the Aldrich family.

Frank McGlynn, with an off-stage courtesy that savors of the old school, headed the supporting cast as the austere school principal who simply couldn't understand Henry Aldrich. McGlynn said he had played in Mansfield, at the old Opera house in 1922 or '23 when he was on the road in John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln."

Josephine Dunne, former top ranking movie star of silent pictures and pretty Cyrilla Dorne played major roles. It was a long cast, but every role was well cast.

The company left this noon for Akron where they play tonight.

Taft Urges 'Policing' of Spending By U. S.

CALLS NEW DEAL POLICY 'INSANE' IN C. OF C. TALK

Presidential Aspirant Says 'Budget Committee' Would Stop 'Useless' Costs.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—Robert A. Taft, Ohio's presidentially-minded Republican senator, looked forward today to another western speaking tour after proposing that congress create "a budget committee" to police federal expenditures.

"The real threat" to the nation's welfare "is still produced by domestic policies," Taft said last night in an address before the Ohio Chamber of Commerce's 46th annual convention.

He occupied the speakers' table with Gov. John W. Bricker, Sen. Edward R. Burke (D-Neb), Cleveland's Mayor Harold H. Burton and a myriad of Ohio business leaders.

John W. Graham, general manager of The Mansfield News-Journal, was elected a director of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce for a two-year term at the Cleveland meeting.

Calls it 'Insane Policy.'

Declaring "the fiscal policy of the federal government today is an insane policy," Taft said "I believe that a budget committee should be created to re-write the so-called budget presented by the president."

He accused Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau of attempting to pass the buck to congress on the "insane" policies.

"It is no easy task," he said. "It is not merely a limitation of appropriations. It requires a change in the relief policy; a change in the social security policy. It requires a critical examination of the proposed increase of army and navy. . . .

"Congress has never had a budget committee. While I believe the attempt should be made to create one, its work will be wholly ineffective unless it is followed by a majority of congress. It cannot secure that cooperation today without the assistance of the president of the United States."

Taft doubted "if the WPA appropriation can be much further reduced unless an affirmative program changing the whole method of administering relief is adopted by returning administration to the states with a federal grant," and doubted "if farm appropriations can be reduced without a complete change in farm policies." He held "many other expenditures can only be stopped after congress, with approval of the president, because they can pass nothing over his opposition and his veto abolishes or drastically cuts various activities which the federal government has recently assumed."

OFFICE EXPANDS

Division of Aid for Aged Here Gets New Quarters.

The county office of the division of aid for the aged was moved into new and larger quarters today on the eighth floor of the Richland Trust building.

For the past three years the office has been on the third floor of the same building, but expansion of the department to provide more pensions for the aged made the move necessary, David S. Ireland, county manager, said.

Eight investigators, clerks and stenographers now are employed in the department which occupies three rooms at the west side of the building.

DIRECTOR'S TRIAL SET

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Trial of James Clifton, suspended Franklin county relief director under indictment for embezzling $466 in county relief funds, was set today for Nov. 27. Clifton is free on $1,000 bond pending his trial.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Maverick Hides His Best Qualities Under Cloak of Phoney Picturesqueness

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Maury Maverick is a little down on his luck as a result of his own exuberance and his efforts to be fair to people who have been ill-treated by that which the double-dome orators and writers call society.

None of his political enemies—and they are many and bitter—can deny or explain away the fact that nobody did anything about wiping out the slums of San Antonio until Maverick came along. Of course, the most practical way to wipe them out would be to use a match and a good robust norther, but there might be some law against that.

I don't believe I can wrap him up in a neat bundle, but for a start will venture an opinion that he contracted ink poisoning in Washington, whereby in his two terms as a New Deal representative he was pretty well greased with publicity by New Deal reporters and commentators. There are a lot of them in Washington who get crushes on men and issues, and when a Texan hung out a sign as a progressive, even a radical, and voted for wages and hours, labor relations and the anti-lynching bill they made him not only famous but picturesque.

It is my impression that in the matter of picturesqueness he made the mistake of trying to live up to his billing, which he pops off too much with superficial or incomplete remarks which make publicity but do not clarify his meaning and, therefore, also make enemies of people who are going his way.

The Harold Ickes-Donald Duck type of political repartee is amusing for a spell, but it isn't statesmanship, and it may have been noticed that Fiorello La Guardia has buttoned up his face and, excusing that silly hat, attends to serious business in a serious way.

In Washington Maverick was a "fiery Texan," but at home he is no more than a lot of other Texans, just as an Irishman in Ireland is no novelty, whereas an Irishman in the U. S. A. may become an act. Still, Maverick could become a rousing, wrong-way demagogue if he had a mind to, for he knows the tricks, and it is to his credit that he hasn't done so, for he has taken his lumps and right now is under indictment on a charge of paying poll taxes for a lot of members of the International Ladies Garment Workers union in the election which made him mayor.

This is a political indictment, but it is not frivolous, and John Shook, the prosecutor, a Texan just as fiery as Maverick, who went to school with him and has known him all that time, seems determined to mow him in. The poll tax is an archaic institution which always has been abused by corporations and machines, and, not granting that Maverick did pay those taxes and thus, in effect, buy union votes, it would be no more ethical or legal for a reformer than for the oil interests to do so.

Maverick has been accused of being a communist and of sympathizing with them, because in his mayoralty campaign he carried the Mexicans and the impoverished model T trade, and because after election he let the communists hold a meeting in a public hall. He explains, however, that he doesn't give a damn for the communists, the C. I. O., the A. F. of L. or the Railway Brotherhood as such, but does set considerable store by civil liberties.

One union—not to say which one—in return for its support, wanted to name the chief of police, having in mind a man who would stand for roughhouse and murder on the picket lines.

Maverick refused and in another case refused to hold back the police for the first three days of a strike, which, the union representative said, was all they needed to win it, presumably by tossing a few fire-crackers into an unprotected plant. Unions, like corporations and all other interests, think they own a man once they have made an important contribution to his election.

I wanted to quote him on communists and asked him if he thought they ever did a candidate any good with their support. "No good at all," he said. "They don't believe in civil liberties, and they call you comrade and get you in wrong with other people. I dislike them for personal reasons, too. I have been getting them out of trouble for 20 years, and then not only the other people but the communists themselves kick me around. Anyway, communists bore me."

The line between the picturesque and the grotesque is thin and meandering, and Mr. Maverick, a man of good political fiber, after perusing his clippings, sometimes has overstepped it.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Maybe it's just poetic justice. Maybe the Messrs. Towne and Baker planned it that way. But from the outside looking in, the production of "Swiss Family Robinson" looks as wacky as some of the deeds of the former writers who turned producers.

Towne and Baker, or Gene and Graham, used to be the silly-willies of the local writing gentry. Shrewd fellows, even in their silliest hours, but definitely off base when it came to attention-getting tricks. Being slightly loco in their disregard for such conventionalities as soft speech or shirt-wearing during literarily productive moments, they have reaped a harvest in cash as well as in "notices" such as this.

* * *

But let's get on that set, and scrutinize the workings of poetic justice in collaboration with the Messrs. T. and B.

In the first place, it's terrific, colossal and gigantic.

In the second, it's incredible.

In the third, it's a jungle.

The good Robinson tribe, duly shipwrecked and now floating on their salvaged raft with household goods and animals, have just arrived in Jungletown. They have found the river (which is here on the sound stage) and they are about to do some exploring. There are Papa R. (Thomas Mitchell) and Mama R. (Edna Best) and the youngsters, including Tim Holt, Terry Kilburn, Freddie Bartholomew, and a baby Quillan of the numerous acting family of Quillans.

In this fantastic jungle, with vines and trees and papier-mache rocks and strange tremendous flowers (i. e., like dinner-plate morning glories) there are also creatures. Creatures on the wing—and on the leg, and branch, and water. Birds.

The Robinsons have steered their raft after their ducks and geese which found the stream flowing into the ocean. The ducks and geese, having done their duty as guides into the interior, are still present. They don't seem to know what to do with themselves, except swim about like crackpots in search of Utopia, honking and quacking.

This is a scene wherein Papa R. is asking the boys to thank heaven for their safety after great perils. The boys and Papa R. stand on the "river's" edge, and papa leads them in prayer.

To enliven the static river's flow, men in trunks stand out of camera range and swish the water with wooden agitators. Another man in trunks gets in and under the water to shoo (or cue) the ducks and geese. The latter wish neither to be shooed nor cued. They honk in protest and flap their wings. The whole aspect is Rube Goldbergish.

Papa R. prays, and the birds cry honk, honk, honk — quack-

Papa R. tried again, and the birds splash and dive—flutter and honk. The director, Edward Ludwig, is getting a little bit flustered.

Papa R. tries again, and again, but all that heaven or the mike can hear is the honking and quacking of the birds.

I don't know how it came out. Prayer probably conquered all, in the end. But I suspect the next Towne-Baker picture won't have any birds.
